1500 MORE MARINES CALLED TO CHINA; HUB UNIT GOES

Washington, March 26 (A.P.)—Fifteen hundred more American marines were ordered to China today, and unless the situation improves there is a prospect that infantry units of the American army also will join the expeditionary force in the Chinese trouble zone.

The new contingent of 1,500 marines will be drawn from the navy yards at Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Paris Island, S. C. The largest unit will go from Quantico, Va., with artillery and aircraft.

Colonel Harold C. Snyder, commanding the marine barracks at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, was designated to command the regiment.

Orders were sent to Boston, Portsmouth, N. H., and Brooklyn detachments to report at Philadelphia. Southern contingents will report at Quantico.

They will cross the continent by train to San Diego and be consolidated into a regiment for which complete equipment is expected to be in readiness upon their arrival at the California port. April 3 has been tentatively fixed as the day of embarkation.

The army transport Chateau Thierry, which recently completed a record run from New York to San Francisco, carrying passengers ill from influenza, may be called upon to make a fast passage across the Pacific to land the new contingent of 1,500 marines in China.

The transport Henderson had been ordered north from Central America today for that purpose, but the navy later began negotiations with the War

NEWS IS DULL, except in China. Plenty of excitement there. Victorious Chinese war lords from the South appear to have been impressed by the guns of American fighting ships, when told that Nanking would be bombarded if they did not free American citizens.

It is fortunate the Chinese decided to back down. To bombard a city full of women and children might be a national duty, but it would be unpleasant, especially as Americans involved had ignored the request of their government to come on board ship while they had a chance and escape danger.

RUSSIA'S Soviet government, remembering Goethe's suggestion that the quickest way to Germanize Poland would be to send German plays and actors,

150 VOLUNTEERS JOIN FIGHT FOR MAN'S LIFE

Fall River, March 26.—A hundred and fifty trained athletes—men and women—are in readiness today to battle for the life of Gil Estrella, 22-year-old victim of the dread Landry's disease.

The paralysis has crept to within eight inches of young Estrella's respiratory organs. When the blighting touch of the disease reaches the diaphragm and lungs of the unfortunate young man the waiting athletes will be ushered into the sick room and will endeavor to save or prolong the victim's life through artificial respiration.

Estrella, a well known orchestra pianist, lies on a cot in the Union Hospital. A squad of the volunteer athletes are waiting call. Others

HUB BOYS EAGER TO GO TO CHINA IN MARINES

Scores of Boston youths, eager to enlist in the Marine Corps if there is a real chance of their going to China and getting into action, are bombarding the officers of the Navy Yard marine detachment for information about fighting opportunities, according to Lieutenant-Colonel Harry L. Smith, commander of the detachment.

Marines at the Navy Yard are awaiting with feverish hope orders for some of them to depart for China. There are 120 on duty at the yard.

"Marines could leave here on two hours' notice," said Lieutenant-Colonel Smith. "The men are just as eager to see action as are the civilians who have stormed us with telephone calls about enlisting.

"We are awaiting orders at present, but we are ready to transfer any number of men called for by the command at Washington."

By a decision reached among high officials at Washington 1500 additional Marines for China will be drawn from posts at Boston, New York, Quantico, Va., and Parris Island, S. C.

At the navy yard here there are many veterans, some of them having been service in China before. There are eight "devil dogs" who within a few days will finish their four-year terms of service and they are debating with themselves to re-enlist for four years more, for the sake of going to China, all of them being eager to see action.

Department for use of the Chateau Thierry instead. She still is at San Francisco.

Reinforcement of the expeditionary force was decided upon today after Admiral Williams, the American naval commander at Shanghai, had requested it in an urgent message.

Despite news dispatches saying the last of the Americans in Nanking had been brought safely out, the admiral said that continuing disorders among the undisciplined Cantonese troops in the Yangtse River section made the outlook increasingly precarious.

The new contingent of marines will be organized into the Sixth regiment and will be known under that designation throughout their service in China.

Besides Colonel Snyder other officers of the regiment named are Lieutenant Colonel Jesse F. Dyer, commanding the marine barracks at Parris Island, S. C.; Major A. B. Miller, attached to the Lakehurst, N. J., air station; Major Harry Schmidt of the marine recruiting station at St. Paul, Minn., and Major Edmond Moore of the post and staff school at Quantico, Va.

Units already organized at Quantico and designated for China service will comprise one provisional detachment, an aviation force, and a headquarters company. Inclusion of an artillery unit indicated that the Washington government intended to prepare its forces for any emergency. The present force at Shanghai has no aviation personnel.

ASKS 1,500 MARINES

Admiral Williams specifically asked for 1,500 more Marines, but ranking officials of the State, War and Navy Departments seriously considered whether the Available Marine contingents would be sufficient.

It is likely that the army units at Hawaii and the Philippines will be held in readiness to go to China if they are needed.

There already are about 4,000 American Marines and bluejackets in Admiral Williams' command in China and Chinese waters.

About 1,600 more bluejackets are aboard three cruisers due in the Chinese area on April 3 from Honolulu, and six additional destroyers carrying over 600 men from the Philippines.

The 1,500 Marines ordered across the Pacific today will bring the total force above 8,000 men.

Of those upwards of 5,000 would be available for landing parties in an emergency.

Capital Alarmed

Just how many already are ashore is unknown to the Navy Department, but the number is somewhere in excess of 1,500.

The message that came early this morning from Admiral Williams aroused great concern in Washington.

There were hurried conferences at the Navy and State Departments, at which the War Department was represented by Major General Summerall, the chief of staff.

Afterward word of the latest development was taken by Secretary Wilbur to President Coolidge, who twice during the night and early morning had personally called the officer of the watch at the Navy Department by telephone to inquire what news had come out of the troubled strip along the Yangtse where Americans have suffered grave outrages and where at least one American citizen has been killed.

When the Naval Secretary told Mr. Coolidge of the appeal from Admiral Williams, the President readily gave Every Kiss Shortens Life 3 Minutes; Go Easy Now, Girls!

Gunnison, Col., March 25 (A.P.)—A kiss shortens human life three minutes, students in the department of psychology at Western State College have decided.

A survey in genetic psychology showed that a kiss causes such palpitation of the heart that the extra beats of the organ amount to the normal number taking place in three minutes.

Figures that are interesting if true show that 536 kisses would shorten life by one full day and that 3,360 kisses would eliminate a week.

Paramus, N. J., March 25 (A.P.)—Seven persons were believed by police to have perished in a two-family frame dwelling which was leveled by fire early today after two sharp explosions. Two women were seen running from the building after the blast.

The explosions were heard for miles and shook the second explosion sent small flaming debris in all directions.

Little was known of the nine persons who occupied the place. They comprised a family named Salerno, who moved here from Passaic two weeks ago. Bits of copper sheeting and blue flame seen led to the belief that a still had exploded.

Armed with knives, the two men slashed each other until Diggins was dead and Meehan was critically wounded.

Lloyd Hamilton, noted comedian, Jack Waggoner, a director, Jimmy Sinclair and Billy James, "stunt" actors, and Mrs. Meehan, wife of the wounded man, were held for questioning following the fatal duel.

More than fifty men and women, many of them in evening dress, fled before the police arrived, it was reported. Police said they discovered large quantities of "moonshine" and beer at the scene of the stabbing.

DECISION RESERVED ON HAGGERTY PLEA

Judge Donahue in Superior Criminal Court today reserved decision on a motion made by William Haggerty for a new trial of the case in which he was found guilty of robbery while armed of an Armenian store proprietor on June 7. Haggerty is serving a sentence of from 12 to 20 years in State Prison.

Thomas Lynch and Harold Smith, who pleaded guilty to the offense denied Haggerty was associated with them, and Albert Michaud said he was the third man in the robbery and not Haggerty. Albert Harrakish, the victim of the robbery, however, positively identified Haggerty and the jury found him guilty.

can be summoned to the hospital within a few minutes' time.

Already the disease which has baffled medical science throughout the world had rendered useless the lower body of the sufferer. Slowly the paralysis is creeping upward, and physicians, in constant attendance at the bedside, are carefully checking the progress of the paralysis.

The case of Estrella is an exact counterpart of that of Albert Frick, young Chicago clerk who was recently kept alive for more than 100 hours by volunteer workers, after the disease attacked and rendered useless the patient's respiratory organs.

The volunteers who will administer artificial respiration to the Fall River youth are all members of the Paramount Swimming Club. All are familiar with the methods employed in inducing artificial respiration, and are fit, physically, to take up the battle when it becomes necessary.

Landry's disease attacked the pianist two weeks ago, following an attack of influenza. At first his feet and ankles were paralyzed. Then the paralysis crept slowly along his limbs until the body was reached. For days Estrella has been helpless on his cot.

He weighed 165 pounds when stricken. Today he weighs barely 125 pounds and is losing weight at an alarming rate each day.

As the paralysis approached the respiratory organs, the attending physicians sent out the call for volunteer workers. Hundreds responded. All day long the corridors of the hospital are filled with men, boys and many women, all eager to render service should they be needed.

The physicians decided to accept the offer of aid from the members of the Paramount Swimming Club, believing its members, on account of their knowledge of artificial respiration and physical fitness, to be best suited for the task.

The physicians do not know when the help of the athletes will be needed. So little is known about the disease that its progress cannot be charted. The paralysis may span the intervening eight inches and attack the respiratory organs within an hour. It may remain stationary for years.

But as far as possible all eventualities have been anticipated. A valiant fight will be made for the life of the young victim, but attending physicians confess that they fear the fight is a losing one—that sometime, sooner or later, death will win the unequal struggle.

HUSBAND HELD IN PROVIDENCE DEATH CASE

Providence, R. I., March 26 (A.P.)—Police investigating the death of Lilly D. Brown, 58, a retired school teacher, today detained Harold Farnham, 48, who lived with her as her common law husband, at No. 111 Laura street.

The woman was found dead in her home. Marks on the body led to suspicion of foul play.

The police said they found the woman's will, which named Farnham, who is a steam heating contractor, as sole beneficiary. Besides the house in which she lived she owned considerable other property.

Farnham told the police that the woman received her fatal injuries in falling down stairs yesterday. He said that he found her body at the foot of the stairway, carried it to a bed, and then summoned a physician.

The doctor, finding the woman dead, notified Medical Examiner William Magill, who, after performing an autopsy, ordered Farnham detained, informing the police that she had more bruises on her body than would have been caused by a fall downstairs.

The woman retired five years ago as principal of the Niagara Street School.

TWO ARRESTS IN KILLING OF JIM SING

Two Chinese suspects were arrested today in connection with the murder of Jim Sing of Cambridge, first New England victim in the new Tong war that has blazed forth in half a dozen cities.

The suspects are Wah Yen Leong, aged 18 of Tyler street and Fillo T. May, aged 34 of Beach street. They were arrested in Chinatown by Headquarters Inspectors Edward Conway and Francis Muller.

The prisoners when taken to headquarters and questioned, protested their innocence. They were closely questioned and later turned over to the Cambridge police.

The finding of a revolver by a Cambridge woman is another important clew on which the police are working.

Police consider the revolver a valuable clue to the slayer of the former treasurer of the Boston Hip Sing Tongs, who was shot down in a laundry at No. 3381 Cambridge street, East Cambridge.

It was found by Mrs. Frank Carland of No. 118 Gore street, an address not far from the scene of the shooting. She found it in the back yard which, police believe, the slayer may have crossed in his flight.

As a result of the terror that spread through Chinatown after the shooting, which came on top of other killings in the Chinatowns of a dozen large American cities, members of the rival tongs, the On Leongs and the Hip Sings, once more have established their traditional "deadlines" in the Boston Chinatown district.

MORGAN GIRL IN PARIS BARES BETROTHAL

Paris, March 26—Informality announced her engagement to Prince Godfrey Hohenlohe Langenbourg, 30, nephew of Queen Marie of Roumania, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt caused a stir here today.

The widow of "Peggy" Vanderbilt who was formerly Gloria Morgan has been here for several months. Her friends had remarked the friendship between the prince and the heiress and today she admitted formal announcement of their engagement was being prepared.

Mrs. Vanderbilt inherited about $30,000 from the estate of her late husband. Before his death it was thought he was of fabulous wealth but years of riotous spending had caused his fortune to dwindle. At the time of his death executors said his estate would hardly meet the claims against it. However, Gloria received $46,000 last December as part of her dower rights.

Her daughter Gloria, however, is heiress to a trust fund of $2,000,000 which Reginald Vanderbilt was unable to touch. After Peggy's death it was expected his widow would near pennies that she might have to go to work. This claim was made when she was asking a $2,000 allowance and dower rights from his estate.

TURK PRINCESS ATTACKED BY PET IN HUB

A marmoset, known as "Abdu," bit its mistress, Princess Kohanna Esme Hamid, daughter of the late Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey, at the Copley-Plaza Hotel today, while she was being interviewed by newspaper reporters.

Not only was the Princess bitten by the little monkey, but it also bit Miss M. D'Armon of New York, the Princess' companion.

Both were given first aid by Vernon (Bud) Gray and John McGrail of the Metropolitan Theatre, where the Princess is dancing next week in an Egyptian fantasy.

Two of Princess Hokanna's fingers were injured by the little animal after she had captured it following its escape from a cage.

"Abdu" then escaped from the suite, terrorizing maids on the second floor of the hotel. It was eventually captured.

Princess Kohanna said she remembered little of her father except that he was a man of pleasing personality. She is 22. She was but 14 when she came to the United States. She said her mother, Esme Yamjan, was a professional dancer.

Of polygamy she said: "It would never do in the United States or Europe. It is all right for Turkey because most Turks look upon women as mere chattles. Even Turkey is becoming Europeanized, however, and there are many Mohammedans who only have one real wife."

TOY GUN LANDS SHOT HARVARD MAN IN TOILS

A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Morton C. Eustis, Harvard Junior, who was shot in the back by Traffic Officer Selden P. Wright while en route to a costume party, wearing convict clothes and carrying a toy pistol.

The warrant, issued by Chief Justice Bolster of the Municipal Court, charges assault with an instrument to wit: a toy pistol, and failing to stop an automobile when ordered by a policeman.

"The revolver was pointed at me as the car went by," said Knight, relaying for the warrants.

"I saw then that he was in prison clothes. I ordered him to hand over the revolver and he replied that he didn't have any. I saw the revolver on the floor of the automobile and drew my gun and fired because of the actions of the people in the car."

Telling of the affair today, Godfrey Gates of Elyria, O., a senior here in Gray's Hall, said:

"I did not know that the toy pistol was pointed at the policeman when we passed him, and the first thing I knew of any trouble was when we reached Hay State road. An automobile speeded past us and ten across our bows, and the two behind pulled us to stop which made the driver, did immediately.

"The officer jumped on the running board with a revolver drawn and ordered us to 'put 'em up.' Then I heard a shot, but I thought the policeman fired in the air to frighten us.

"He lined us up in the road and a couple of taxi drivers who had come also searched us for weapons. Eustis explained that he had a toy pistol in his coat pocket and he started to bring it to light, but the police man commanded him to keep his hands up."

Othello — Death of the Moor — Shakespeare's Drama of Jealousy

"Are there no stones in heaven
But what serves for the thunder?"

Iago, unmasked, became vicious and desperate. He stabbed his wife to death, and attempted to escape when Othello rushed at him to kill him. Iago was recaptured, and Othello's sword taken from him, but he quickly secured another.

"Will you, I pray, demand that demi-devil why he hath thus ensnared my soul and body?"

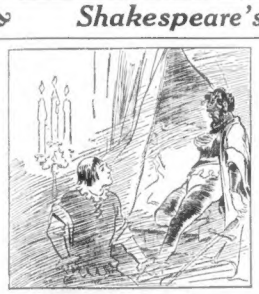
Othello wounded Iago, but would not kill him, saying death was too easy for him. Othello was informed that he would be held prisoner for murdering his wife, and his lieutenant, Cassio, had been named commander of the army.



"An honorable murderer, if you will,
For naught I did in hate, but all in honor."

Using an old sword which he kept as a souvenir of his early military campaigns, Othello stabbed himself in the breast. Iago, who had caused all the Moor's unhappiness by lying about Desdemona, was condemned to death.

"Speak of me as I am: then must you speak
Of one that loved not wisely, but too well."

Othello bade his friends a tragic farewell, asking that they report him not unkindly. Then he faltered to the bed, where lay Desdemona, murdered by his hand, and, trying to kiss her still, small mouth, Othello, the Moor, expired.

'KILL FOREIGNERS!' IS CRY AS U. S. WOMEN FLEE RAIN OF LEAD

WARSHIPS' FIRE HALTS RABID MOB IN NICK OF TIME

Shanghai, March 26 (A.P.).—Harrowing tales of escapes from death at the hands of lawless and bestial Cantonese soldiers, inflamed against foreigners, were related today by Nanking refugees arriving at Shanghai on the steamers Kungwo and Wenchow.

The number of refugees brought by these steamers totaled 220.

Mrs. John K. Davis, wife of the United States consul, was still shaken by the ordeal. She told of the flight of Americans, including herself and two children, from the consulate, where the Cantonese threatened to kill all foreigners.

Mrs. Davis and her children arrived with nothing save the clothes on their backs. She displayed a bottle of cough syrup given to her by an officer on the Kungwo, saying: "Here's my baggage."

On Thursday morning, she related, twenty-three Americans were gathered at the consulate—she and Mr. Davis and their children, Vice Consul Paxton, six missionary men, a marine officer, and eleven marines. The latter had come ashore from a destroyer Tuesday to guard the consulate. Mr. Davis ordered the marines to put away their arms and he did not want the Cantonese to find an armed guard as it might provoke an attack. He also sent word to Americans concentrated at Nanking University not to try to oppose the soldiers since it might mean death.

At 10 A. M. Thursday word was received that the Cantonese troops had begun looting. Then it was reported that the British and Japanese consuls had been killed and the consulates looted. Mr. Davis ordered the men to resume their arms and the party started for Socony Hill, which had been designated as the concentration point, with the Stars and Stripes at the head.

Hardly had the party left the consulate when soldiers in Nationalist uniforms fired on them. They kept up a constant sniping from alleys during the two miles to the Soconoy plant. The Davis children, and a girl named Shannon, aged eleven, and a boy named Spencer, aged six, bravely walked the entire distance without a whimper.

American Shot Kills Chinese

She said she reached Socony Hill thoroughly exhausted; the men had to help her along. The sniping grew heavier until, when a half mile from the hill, they were almost surrounded. There they took refuge temporarily in a bamboo grove. Three soldiers, who followed 50 yards, fired and hit Private Plumley in the back. He fell, but gamely returned the fire, killing two of his assailants. Three of them fled.

The party ran the rest of the way and gained the hill, where several Britishers and Americans had assembled. Women and children were sent indoors as the men prepared for defence.

Other groups of refugees arrived, bringing the total to more than 50. Soldiers in Nationalist uniforms began coming to the house in large groups demanding money and threatening to kill all within.

This occurred several times. Mr. Davis and Earl T. Hobart, Standard Oil manager, risked their lives while facing the soldiers and arguing with them in Chinese. Finally one of the soldiers said to Mr. Davis: "We don't want more money. We want to kill; we'll kill Americans, French, British or any foreigners."

At 3 o'clock the firing became heavier. Mr. Paxton, who had left the party while it was on the way to Socony Hill to seek two Juomintang (Nationalist) friends, returned with them, bearing a Juomintang flag. This seemed to enrage the soldiers, who tore down the flag and began attacking the house in earnest, starting to crowd up the entry way and steps. The marines were ordered to prepare to fight.

Ships Open Fire; Save Women

A rocket—the agreed signal asking the warships for aid—was sent up. Mrs. Davis continued:

"The women and children were all shut in the bathroom, where they lay on the floor, hearing the bullets crashing through windows and whistling overhead, meanwhile praying for the ships' barrage to begin. The firing of the soldiers became heavier and the marines replied. It is believed they inflicted heavy casualties.

"Nevertheless the Cantonese forced an entry and began to ascend the stairs, seeking foreign women.

"My husband then shouted, 'This is the end.' Just then the first shells began bursting around the hill, drawing off the attackers. We breathed again. We seized this chance to escape."

Mrs. Davis told how the party climbed from the second-story using sheets, ropes, curtains and blankets. They hastened to the city wall, which is 40 feet high. They climbed the steps on the inside, but had to let each other down on the other side by means of ropes. Mr. Hobart fell 20 feet and broke his ankle.

Beyond the wall a moat had to be crossed; then two miles across open fields. Throughout the party was the target for snipers. The marines aided Private Plumley and Mr. Hobart to reach the river, where the party obtained sampans and set out in the direction of the ships. A British landing party was hailed and they took the refugees aboard the British ship Woisey, later they were taken aboard the Emerald where they found Rear Admiral Hough. Mr. Davis went into conference with him.

At ten o'clock Thursday night Mrs. Davis and her children were placed aboard the Kungwo, which sailed Friday. Mr Davis remained at Nanking.

The Kungwo and Wenchow escorted by the United States destroyer Preston and the British gunboat Cricket, were fired on along the river. The warships replied. Although the Kungwo is the largest passenger boat on the Yangtse, there were many discomforts during the voyage.

Numbers of women passengers who had been aboard the destroyers Noa and Preston prior to the shelling, sailed without news of their husbands. They feared for the worst as when they sailed from Nanking the situation was direful, but were much relieved when they learned that a majority of the foreigners had been evacuated.

Among those who have reached Shanghai are Mrs. Allen Hutcheson of Houston, Tex., wife of the superintendent of the Nanking University Hospital, and her three children.

The Hutcheson party was evacuated Thursday, being taken in a launch from the bund to the Noa under fire from both sides of the river. They were immediately ordered below. The refugees were in a high pitch of excitement as they knew it was only a matter of time until the ships opened fire.

At 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon the officer explained to the refugees that the bombardment was soon to begin. He warned them to remain quiet and unafraid.

Cry Is, "Kill Foreigners!"

The Preston opened the bombardment, closely followed by the Emerald and Noa. The firing continued for an hour and a half, the Emerald using six-inch shells.

During the bombardment two or three women broke down under the strain of events. The others displayed fortitude. The children apparently enjoyed themselves, keeping close count of the shots. From refugees who arrived late, Mrs. Hutcheson learned that her home in Nanking had been looted.

She said that before she went aboard the Noa anti-foreign fever had been burning among the troops, who did not attack Chinese, but threatened to kill every foreigner they met.

Mrs. J. H. Reisner of New York city, wife of the dean of the College of Agriculture, University of Nanking, was aboard the Preston with her two children during the bombardment. She said some foreigners escaped from the city in Chinese clothes. She told how the manager of the Bridge House Hotel and his wife, dressed in coolie clothes lay most of a day in a pig sty hearing the threats of mobs to kill foreigners.

The majority of the Kungwo and Wenchow refugees boarded the warships prior to the bombardment, with the exception of the Socony Hill group. Another group of Britishers were concentrated at the waterfront property of the British-owned International Export Company. A member of this group described the night-long evacuation of the Northern forces previous to Thursday's outbreak as orderly. These eye-witnesses say the Northerners crossed the river in swarms by every conceivable craft, but offered no violence to foreigners.

Thursday morning the river was practically cleared of this movement of northerners. Then the southerners arrived and began to surround the buildings, hundreds shouting threats. In the early afternoon they began an attack and the British under sailor guard, evacuated in launches to the ships amid a running fire from the river bank. It was learned later that the export company, which is the largest packing plant in the Orient, was systematically robbed.

Thursday night the sky was lurid with fires on both sides of the river.

Wife Saw Dr. Williams Slain in Cold Blood

Shanghai, March 26 (A.P.).—Dr. J. E. Williams of Shawnee, O., who was killed during the Nanking disorders, was shot by Chinese soldiers in cold blood on a street near Nanking University, of which he was vice-president. His wife, who had elected to remain with him despite entreaties that she leave the city, and other Americans looked on.

Dr. Williams' daughter and son, Miss Faith and Richard, have arrived in Shanghai on the steamer Kungwo. They left Nanking before their father was shot.

Dr. Williams was shot at his home near the university. Witnesses to ay said that he stood outside his home while the Cantonese were looting it. As the Chinese soldiers departed, he called out "good bye" in Cantonese, whereupon a soldier turned and shot him.

Among the thrilling escapes from Nanking was that of the British postal commissioner Mr. Hareeks, who reached the waterfront by hiding under mail sacks in a postoffice truck.

TONG SLAYING IN CAMBRIDGE

Brooklyn, Newark, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. The youthful Chinese gunman, who shot down the 65-year-old merchant, cared nothing for his own safety.

He was out to kill, and it made no difference that a police station was but a stone's throw away and that scores of persons were passing when the murder was done.

Dispassionately the man drew the gun from the pocket of his American clothes and, standing in the doorway of Jim Sing's little shop, he fired two bullets into the body of the man behind his ironing board.

Three men heard the shots and reached the laundry in time to see the young Chinese walk coolly away, leap into an automobile with a second Chinese at the wheel, and speed off.

Alexander Fabrizio, a tailor with a shop next door to the laundry, ran to the place when he heard the shots as did a customer in his store, Thomas Monaco, and a passerby, Jeremiah McCarthy.

They found Jim Sing crumpled behind his ironing board.

Two children, Tony and Joseph Pichelli, 12 and 9 years old, respectively, were almost run down by the speeding automobile in which the two killers escaped.

The killing of Jim Sing followed close on the heels of the report of a murder of a Chinese in Washington.

Only 25 minutes before he was killed, Jim Sing answered a call for him in Fabrizio's tailor shop. Whether this was a warning which the Chinese would not heed, or whether it was notice of his death for which he stoically waited, the police do not know.

Washington, March 25 (I.N.S.).—The Chinese Tong war extended to Washington today and one Chinese, Lem Chong, was murdered in the kitchen of a restaurant directly opposite police headquarters. The murderer escaped.

Investigation was begun by District Attorney Wilbur after complaint had been made by the State Federation of Churches.

Everett Gibbs of Marion, who held the winning ticket, was said to have received $1,500, although the building was said to be worth $10,000.

his assent to the plans of reinforcement worked out in the early morning conferences.

He indicated his entire satisfaction that the admiral should be regarded as the trusted representative of the American government, and that his judgment should be accepted fully.

The American government is reluctant to use the army in China unless it becomes absolutely imperative. Should it be found necessary, however, the troops probably would be taken from the 4,200 available in Hawaii, and the 1,500 at Manila.

The Hawaiian force includes the 19th, 21st, 27th and 35th infantry regiments, and the Philippines force is made up of the 31st infantry and one battalion of the 15th infantry.

There are in addition two battalions of the 15th Infantry stationed at Tientsin, China, guarding a section of the railroad to Peking.

Diplomatic as well as military pressure is being brought to bear in the effort to compose the disordered situation in Nanking, Shanghai and other river cities.

Consul-General Lockhart at Hankow has been instructed to "protest vigorously" to the Canton authorities against "the unprovoked and outrageous attack upon and the killing of American citizens by Nationalist forces at Nanking."

Escape of the remaining Americans in Nanking, already recorded in news dispatches, was officially announced today in a message from Admiral Hough at Nanking. The word reached the Navy Department while Secretary Wilbur was in conference with President Coolidge. It was flashed immediately to the White House.

A report from Consul-General Gauss at Shanghai told of the arrival there of the first shiploads of the Nanking refugees, many of them destitute. The American Red Cross is placing $10,000 at their disposal.

Gauss also reported rapid evacuation of Americans and other foreigners from Hankow and elsewhere in the Yangtse valley to Shanghai.

U. S. Warship Shell Broke the "Siege of Socony Hill"

London, March 26 (A.P.).—A shell from an American warship broke the Cantonese siege of the foreigners huddled on Socony Hill in Nanking and paved the way for their escape to safety.

Adm. Hough Adm. Williams

An account of the affair, as told by refugees, was forwarded today from Shanghai by a Reuter correspondent. The refugees arriving in Shanghai, he reports, were haggard and weary after their period of intense anxiety, but demanded to learn the fate of the remaining foreigners before telling their story.

Describing the scene on Socony Hill, one refugee said the little group of 50 foreigners were besieged by the Chinese, with howling mobs carrying on an orgy of looting and destruction in all directions.

When the situation became critical, an American sailor mounted to the roof of the Standard Oil building on top of the hill and, with shots flying around him, signalled something to the warships in the river.

The message was full of meaning, for the suspense was immediately broken by the scream of a shell from an American warship, which exploded 40 yards from the Cantonese soldiers and scattered them like rabbits.

This was the beginning of the bombardment which, the refugees repeatedly declared, alone saved the lives of the foreigners and made their escape possible.

Soviet Flag Flies Over Shanghai R. R. Terminal

Shanghai, China, March 26 (A.P.).—The Soviet flag flies over the Shangahi North Station, terminus of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, just outside the international settlement.

The Chinese workers who went on strike when the Cantonese entered Shanghai are returning to work but most of them are armed and they are endeavoring to run the railway with workers' committees, without foreign aid.

Since the strike began none of the British officials has been allowed in the railway station. At the railway shops all Chinese foremen were dismissed by armed committees.

Intense activity is reported among the labor unions in the native cities joining Shanghai. All these unions are said to be controlled by the Reds, and an intensive organization campaign is proceeding, especially among the lower laboring class.

What Good's a Court Minus Furniture? Fin. Com. Asks

In a communication to Mayor Nichols, the Finance Commission again today told him that furniture for the new Dorchester Courthouse is sadly lacking.

The building was completed in December, but, according to the Finance Commission's letter, it cannot be used until new furniture is placed there. At present, the letter states, the public is forced to use the "dirty and inadequate old building."

In January the commission charged that the lowest bid for furniture taken in December was made through improper assistance from the architect of the building and recommended that all bids be rejected and new ones asked. Since, nothing has been done, the commission charges.

Commenting on the report, Superintendent of Buildings John P. Englert said:

"I can't see anything illuminating in the report. The contract has been given to the lowest bidder."

contain bichloride of mercury and that the officers with him seized it.

Mrs. Ruth Snyder, accused of the slaying of Albert Snyder, her husband, today observed her thirty-second birthday in tearful solitude.

But for the murder, which brought her and Henry Judd Gray to jail, she would tonight have been in the midst of the gaiety she has said she loved. The party was to have been held at her Queens Village home.

The guests invited, according to E. F. Hazleton, Mrs. Snyder's attorney, were to have been the same sixteen who were at the bridge whist party last Saturday night, from which Snyder returned only to be killed in his bed.

Mrs. Snyder Signed Letters to Gray as "Your Momie"

Philadelphia, March 26 (A.P.).—A special dispatch to the Evening Bulletin from Easton, Pa., gives the text of two letters found in the unclaimed mail of an Easton hotel and addressed to H. Judd Gray, accused with Mrs. Ruth Snyder of the killing of the latter's husband, Albert Snyder. They were opened by George Ryan, Northampton County detective, who said he believed they were written by Mrs. Snyder. He will turn them over to the Queens County authorities.

One letter, mailed from Queens Village, February 24, salutes Gray as "My own lover boy." The letter was signed by "Your Momie."

The second letter, also dated February 24, was mailed from Jamaica, N. Y., and addresses Gray as "My very own sweetheart." This letter also contained endearing terms and inquired when Gray was coming home and whether the writer could meet him at the train.

CHINA NATIONAL WAR CHIEF DEFIES U. S.

Shanghai, China, March 26 (A.P.)—The foreign powers cannot send enough warships to China to suppress the aspirations of the Chinese people, says a statement issued in the name of General Chang Kai Shek, the Cantonese commander-in-chief, who arrived in Shanghai today.

The statement says Chang has no intention of using force to solve the problem of the Shanghai international settlement and that it must be settled "in the proper time and place" by diplomatic means.

Chang declared there was no danger to foreign lives and property from the Nationalist army. In his opinion, the Nanking affair was finished, as all the foreigners were out. He regarded it as merely an isolated incident.

He declared the Americans had been drawn in by the British, and said America should not let Great Britain lead her into a false position, else she would find herself as unfavorably placed in China as was Britain. China was always ready to evoke her powerful economic weapon, he said.

Chang motored into the French concession accompanied by armed guards. The explanation was that he lost his way.

Later, calls were made upon him by the Norwegian consul, who is the senior member of the consulate body in Shanghai; the Soviet consul, and high police officials of the French and International settlements.

Miss Patsy White, true daughter of Dixie, was attired as of Southern Dame of pre war days; John Watts, like many another youth, was costumed as a sailor; Miss Barbara Forbes was a most bewitching parlor maid; Miss Helen McKee wore the dress of the young girl a generation back, and John Watters arrayed himself in an ancient gingham robe; Miss Sally Lovell was a Pierrette, while George Braden, a Spanish sailor, exceedingly transmogrified.

NEW ENGLAND PROBLEMS OUTLINED BY KNOX

By FRED TOYE.

New England's real task is not to get new industries, but to foster and promote the welfare of the communities which it has.

This point was brought out and stressed, by Colonel Frank Knox chairman of the Committee on Public Relations and Community Organization of the New England Council, in the course of his address before that body at the Statler Hotel during the first quarterly meeting of he Council.

"Intelligent optimism should be the dominating influence with all New England industrial and business leaders," said the speaker.

"We must learn to do as our fathers have done before us, and that is to meet and solve our problems as they arise. If we can get back to that attitude, we shall have one of the most prosperous communities in the United States.

THINK OF ADVANTAGES.

"New England must think of its advantages rather than of its disadvantages. We have no more and no greater disadvantages than any other section of the country. We have no more than our fair share of natural disadvantages, and much more than our fair share of advantages. The present is a time of test as to whether we are worthy sons of our forebears.

"The best business minds of New England must engage themselves on the question of the appalling increase in taxation and in costs of government. These increases are largely due to indifference upon the part of the business men and their habit of saying to themselves that they have not time to bother with these matters.

"We have had great economies in the national government, but for every dollar saved by the national government, there has been a dollar added for State and municipal expenses.

"Don't invent new sources of taxation, but rather, put your energies to the task of reducing the expenses of government.

FOR LITTLE CHAMBERS.

"I wish further to appeal to you on behalf of the little chambers of commerce and other civic bodies in the small communities throughout New England, who have not the staffs, the funds or the facilities for adequate surveys of their own financial conditions, and for arriving at proper solution of their needs. These bodies should have all the help that it is within the power of the New England conference to bring to them. Their well-being is vital not only to themselves, but to us as well, for they are all contributing to the prosperity of all New England."

Henry F. Merrill of Portland told members of the Council of an appropriation of $50,000 made by the State Legislature of Maine for advertising the State.

"I assure you that Maine has no wish to maintain a position of splendid isolation. You will find her people as always, generous, sympathetic and loyal to New England. The eleven delegates who are here today, coming from the very farthest points in the State, are testimony of the spirit of Maine," he said.

CONDITIONS SPEED UP.

William S. Rossiter of Concord, N. H., observed that New England is not the only section of the country which is acquiring a community consciousness.

"Conditions are speeding up, and when we find that they are, we must speed up with them," he said.

Herbert C. Comings of Richford, Vt., told of a State appropriation of $10,000 for furthering the New England movement in his State.

Henry D. Sharpe of Providence, R. I., told of progress of the New England movement in his State through the organization of the United Chamber of Commerce to take the place of a State Chamber which Rhode Island has never had. He spoke at some length upon the industrial survey of Providence and surroundings, now being conducted by the department of industrial survey of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Henry Trumbull of Plainville, Conn., told members of the council that Connecticut has no sick industries. Consequently it is hard to interest the business and industrial interests of the State in any general movement while things are going well.

TALK OPTIMISM.

"We must talk optimism, feel optimism, and work to that end," he said.

John F. Tinsley of Worcester, vice-president of the Council, and State chairman for Massachusetts who occupied the chair at the closing hours of the conference, emphasized the importance of getting known to the various communities the facts concerning their local industries. He told of recommendations made to Governor Fuller by the Massachusetts Council to call together representative citizens for the solution of industrial problems. He pointed out that since labor cooperation is necessary, it is expected that labor would be represented in the creation of such committees by local groups.

The next quarterly meeting of the Council is set for June 15, in New Hampshire. The Fall meeting will be held September 16, in Maine.

Sydney, Australia, March 26 (A.P.)—With the Duke and Duchess of York aboard, the British cruiser Renown entered the harbor here today, escorted by three destroyers and many aircraft. The Renown anchored amid a thunder of salutes.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY FOLK

A LIFE ON THE BRINY DEEP IS PERHAPS THE AFTER college aim of many a Hasty Pudding man. At least so it would seem, judging from the numerous sailor lads at the Hasty Pudding's annual costume party. John Watts, manager of this year's dance, was a natty Jack Tar in white duck. Moses Williams, son of Mrs. Moses Williams, one of the patronesses was also a sailor boy. So also was "Shorty Crawford," who'll next year be the quarterback. Charlie Fawcett, chairman of the Lampoon, also donned the trig blouse and wide-bottomed trousers of Uncle Sam's Navy.

HASTY PUDDING MEN DO A COSTUME PARTY TO PERFECTION. Handsome John Lodge, hero of several Pudding shows, was just as handsome as ever in a scarlet and white blazer suit for tennis. Mr. Lodge has completed his regular course, but is back this year for graduate work. Thorndike Howe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thorndike Howe of Beacon Hill, leader of the Harvard Instrumental Clubs, was a handsome Romany, with dangling earrings and the picturesque get-up of his tribe. Eddie Nash was a farmer.

LOUIS DE JONGE MIGHT HAVE WANDERED INTO THE CHEERY clubhouse of the Puddingers straight from the Latin Quarter, so true to "Left Bank" atmosphere was he. Guy Murchie, who rowed No. 7 on last year's varsity crew, was a brigand bold, perhaps one of the hardy Basques who fared forth for booty in days of old. At least his colored shirt and his knotted head scarf were gay enough for those hardy folk, who love bright colors. Just what Oliver Ames portrayed was a matter of guess-work. He, too, probably hailed from the Paris of the artist, for an enormous crimson tam fell rakishly over one ear, and he wore the flowing tie always associated with the "Boul' Mich."

FRIARS IN ROUGH BROWN ROBES WERE KENNETH NORTON and Eddie Sutton, the former moving through collegiate days with athletic honors to his credit. For he was captain of last year's freshman crew, no less. Albert Lutman was a natty bellhop, in trim, snug, bright green suit and a tiny round hat atop his head. Dave Lennox, Jr., was a cowboy in sombero of the rallon variety, checked shirt and chaps. Ernest Gamache was a toreador, in gala arena array. John Watters was a comic in ancient patterned ginghams. The president of the Porcellian Club, J. Randolph Harrison, chose to disguise his handsome self as a farmer lad, in overalls and gingham shirt. As president of the University's most exclusive organization, Mr. Harrison wields not a little influence in club circles.

OF COURSE PRESIDENT A. LAWRENCE LOWELL AND MRS. Lowell did the honors for the Hasty Pudding men. No affair of the sort is considered complete unless the august head of the University and his lady look in for an hour or so. The patronesses were very handsomely turned out, as is their wont. Mrs. Frederic L. W. Richardson was in the soft beige crepe with graceful scarf and shoulder posy of gardenias and orchids. Mrs. Moses Williams was in red crepe, and Mrs. James Jackson, Jr., wore the same gay shade.

MRS. MATTHEW LUCE'S GOWN OF CHIFFON WAS OF SOFT Spring green and there was a girdle of brilliants defining the low waistline. Mrs. Robert W. Emmons, 2d, was in gray and silver, and Mrs. Lowell in black satin with white. Cleverly thought out and as cleverly carried out were the costumes the young girl guests donned for this jolly occasion. Miss Janice Vaughan, who makes her bow another year, was "The Chanteleer of 1927" in up-to-the-moment black satins and scarlet tulles, her brilliant dark hair banded with crystal.

FROM THE RED POMPOM ON HER BLUE SAILOR CAP TO HER tricky red shoes, Miss Esther Underwood was to the life a French sailor lad. She wore a bright red jersey that matched the red pompom and was as trim as you please. Miss Barbara Forbes was a parlor maid fit to grace the most elaborate establishment. Her frilly cap and frilly apron with a smart little black satin dress were exceedingly becoming. Miss Natalie Merrill was a tennis girl. Miss Agnes Murchie was a Chinese maiden adorned with a profusion of oriental jewels. A Happy Hooligan was Miss Betty Bartlett. Miss Hannah Hallowell wore a picturesque Muscovite costume. Miss Virginia Gardner, just back from Nassau, was a bloodie in checked gingham, and Mrs. George S. Mumford, Jr., was a Summer girl.

MISS PATSY WHITE FROM WAY DOWN SOUTH IN DIXIE WORE her grandmother's gown of deep sea blue taffeta, with long full skirt sweeping into the bustle of the period, and panniers and bosom in keeping. Miss Mary Robinson, a Wellesley beauty, was the modern maid in palest corn lace with tinsel shoulder straps holding the off shoulder bodice. Miss Sally Lowell was a Pierrette in bright blue satin and Al Miller was a chef of the Ritz, spiked mustachios and spotless white linen. No Hasty Pudding story is complete without mention of the "Moynahan orchestra," led by "the" Moynahan himself. A Pudding affair without this set, celebrated for its syncopations, would seem flat and without flavor to the regulars, who find delight in the special Moynahan brand of music.

TRINITY WAS FILLED WITH FLOWER FRAGRANCE AND TRINity's dim spaces held massed pink hydrangeas, graceful Bermuda lilies and stately calla- without number for the wedding ceremonial of Miss Mary Weld and Sumner Pingree at noon today. A master craftsman's hand was to be seen in the festive motif, the combining of bright rose-pink against cream white, and of tall tree ferns, the lacy Australian sort of palest green, and lighted tapers in tall holders.

BOSTON'S OLD ESTABLISHED ARISTOCRACY FILLED EVERY nook and cranny of the fine old church. Indeed, there was hardly a "first family" of the town but that had its representatives there. And the bride, radiant in shimmering white satin and misty tulle, was dainty exquisite. Her gown had a chic touch with its frontsided sash, and the priceless rose point veil carried the slenderest of suits panels. The spike rose point, that framed her face, and the face veil of tulle were effectively becoming.

SHE HAD BUT THREE ATTENDANTS AND THEY WORE frocks and hats of orchid. Miss Elizabeth Soule, Miss Ella de T. Snelling and Miss Margaret Winslow—these three—their hats enormous affairs of transparent straw and their gowns of crepe slenderly draped. Bouquets varied the motif a bit with golden roses and pink-toned lilies. Mrs. Charles Goddard Weld, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in black satin with an exquisite corsage of enormous white orchids. Mrs. John H. Bancroft, Mr. Pingree's mother, was smart in beige crepe. There was a reception at the Bay State road town house of the bride and later a ruing-a-ums wedding breakfast for some half a hundred guests at the Hotel Brunswick. Small tables loaded with freshly fragrant sweetpeas and roses made the breakfast the sort of intimate affair particularly pleasing to the bride's tastes.

AND NOW DEDHAM RALLIES TO ARTIST FOLK AND IS GIVING its own Exhibition. "Arts" leaflets in soft tan and golden brown announce an "Artists' Night" at Community House on March 30 to inaugurate a five-day show. Artists identified in one way or another with the fine old town will show their works—Philip L. Hale and Lilian Westcott Hale probably representing the family. Thus there are Charles E. Mills, Harry Spiers, Charles M. Cox and Clara Greenleaf Pe——all of whom are set in the Artists' Hall of Fame.

What Will Be the Best Advertisement in the Boston American Next Week

PRIZE REVIEW OF CURRENT ADVERTISING

Conducted by the Boston American, Sponsored by the Advertising Club of Boston

THE PLAN:

To Measure Advertising Values

The Boston American offers a prize for the best advertisement appearing in its columns each week. The Advertising Club of Boston has consented to co-operate in this novel and useful competition. President P. F. O'Keefe of that organization has appointed a board of five judges who will determine the winning advertisement each week.

The judges are chosen because of their knowledge of sound principles of advertising and because of their successful experience in one or more fields of business associated with advertising.

THE PURPOSE:

To Throw New Light on Advertising

Through this competition the Boston American hopes to make a useful contribution in the cause of better advertising. In the interests of the merchants, the manufacturers and of all the other men and women who invest their money in the advertising columns of the newspaper and in the interests of the readers of the paper, the Boston American exerts its continued and active influence toward intelligent production and dependable advertising. This "prize review" is intended as an interesting example of that definite policy.

THE AWARD:

The Cost of the Advertisement

The advertiser whose insertion is judged to be the best appearing in the Boston American during the week will receive a receipted bill for the advertisement, whether it be half an inch or a page. The Boston American will announce the winner in its columns and publish the official comment of the judges.

Interesting expressions of opinion from public officials, advertising experts, business men, readers and others whose reactions are valuable will be published in connection with these reports and comments.

All Advertising Is Eligible

All advertising appearing in the Boston American, whether it be classified, local, or national, is eligible for this "test" except the advertising used in the interests of the American, Boston Advertiser, or other Hearst publications. No advertisement will be too small. Even the small Help-Wanted, Rooms for Rent and other advertisements in the classified section will be judged, as well as the display advertising of merchants, manufacturers and their local distributors.

To Students, Schools and Colleges

What is YOUR opinion? Every student who devotes any serious thought and study to merchandising and advertising, should be alert to the significance of this "prize review." Among other things, it provides a means of comparing your own judgment with that of the Board of Judges. The judges will welcome the expression of opinion and the comments of individual students or of classes in economics, merchandising and advertising analysis and practice.

The judges will base their selections on this scale:

BASIS OF SCORING	PER CENT. CREDIT
General Attention Value (a) Quality of typography (10%) (b) Quality of illustration (10%)	20%

What do you think? What will be your choice of the best advertisement published in the American next week—advertising which is written and planned with you in mind? Why not write the judges and tell them what advertisement you like best, and why. Read the advertisements with special care. Then write the judges, care of the Boston American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, or write to them personally, and tell them what you think. They will appreciate your opinion as an advertisement reading consumer who weighs the claims of merchants and manufacturers in making his purchases.

COLLEGE DRAMATICS — IMPORTANT ROLE

Stymies the Stock Companies.

Jarvis Kerr, Vassar 1925, now making her professional debut with Mrs. Fiske in "Ghosts" at the Park, has succeeded in leaping in one standing broad jump from college dramatics to an important role without hard and tearful training in stock.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Indeed, This Deserves Mention.

Uninteresting as statistics usually turn out to be, it may be worth while to note that the engagement of "What Price Glory" at the Majestic has already attracted more than 175,000 eager picture fans. Week by week this sets up a new local record.

ATTENDANCE 175,000

PERSONS OF THE PLAY IN PLAYFUL POSES SEEN IN THE NEW WEEK'S SHOWBILLS

A SIMPLE SENOR in "Grouche" Marx, one of Mrs. Marx' four funny boys, who, with Margaret Dumont (on the right), will whoop it up at the Colonial Monday night in "The Cocoanuts."

MARION DALE is one of the circlous ladies in "Sunny" at the Wilbur who perform so many tricks during the course of an hysterical evening, you can't adequately describe her.

THE GARTER GIRLS are Jocelyn Lyle and Lucille Moore, two trumps in "Queen High," the "ace of musical shows" in the popular favor of Boston audiences. Again, it is the "positively last week" for "Queen High."

MAN HALFERIN comes to Keith's next week in a repertoire of the kind of songs nobody ever gets enough of. She will sing tunes with a smile, some less gay, and one or two with the trace of a tear.

THE DANCE DRAMA takes possession of the Boston Opera House next week when Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn bring the Denishawn Dancers to town. Here, the two principals are posed in an Algerian scene.

OUT OF HARD SEASON COMES RESCUE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

CLOSE upon the heels of many discouraging stories concerning both the present and the future of the spoken drama comes the report that Mrs. Fiske and Margaret Anglin propose to save it for the moment and promote it for the future. Mingling our Lenten devotions with Mrs. Fiske's artistic but dire interpretation of Ibsen's "Ghosts" at the Park there may be more than a grain of hope that the newly proposed Fiske-Anglin Theatre may partially rescue the drama of plain language from the bitter disorder into which it has fallen. There is little that is fresh in a narrative of what has befallen comedies and such things of the theatres. Revivals have flourished; smart playhouses dates have stumbled and collapsed in the face of higher prices. Shed tears, if you must, but the tale is authentic.

IT is now planned by Mrs. Fiske and Margaret Anglin, artists of more than ordinary repute, to establish the Fiske-Anglin Theatre for the glory of those who take their playgoing seriously and who hope for better things than the Shuberts and the Erlangers have coined out of a weary world for several seasons. In spite of Lenten restrictions and artistic indifference, Mrs. Fiske has spent anguish through a week of "Ghosts." As a matter of fact she has deserved a better fate, for, whatever may be the laymen's opinion of Ibsen and his dire dramas, Mrs. Fiske has, at least, taken dramatic literature at its best, struggled with it, and honestly attempted to give it an honest hearing. This, you must confess, is a hard assignment.

No matter who may lay a heavy hand upon the American drama, as one may expect greater response than the hopeful playgoer who has his faith upon Mrs. Fiske. Here, in any event, is the one artiste of the theatre who always has battled for the best and always risen if fallen with the more or less questionable verdict of the masses. In "Ghosts" Mrs. Fiske takes a sour play and makes the most of it. Her keen devotion to the ideals and the literature of Ibsen make it comparatively easy for her to labor bravely in a great work of limited popular appeal.

WITH the new Fiske-Anglin Theatre, devised for the spoken drama generally and a specific movement to restore the fading drama in restricted communities, there is little doubt of a hopeful achievement. The movement, we are told by Harrison Grey Fiske, is national. A group of players have recognized the perils of the times and are anxious to rescue the theatre from an almost universal slump. The project proposed by Mrs. Fiske and Miss Anglin is no fantastic dream—it is cold business, with just a touch of the artistic. Already the first play has been decided upon, "The Merry Wives of Windsor," and Otis Skinner has been invited to be the guest star. It's a good old play, and with a popular cast, we may still believe that the day of the revival is always the brightest and safest.

Sweet Songstress

CAROLYN THOMSON sings high notes in true operetta fashion as the Shubert in the stirring acts of "The Vagabond King."

GILDA WAITS FOR UNIFORM

Gilda Gray was recently approached by a member of the Paramount publicity staff as she was at the studio making preparations for her second starring picture, "Cabaret," which starts at the Metropolitan today.

"Miss Gray," said he, "we would like to get some photographs of you in your dancing costumes before production starts."

"I'm sorry," answered Miss Gray, "it can't be done."

"But Miss Gray," protested the press agent, "surely you realize that everyone would like to see how you dress in your new picture."

"Well, they ought to," the star of 'Aloma of the South Seas' replied, "and it isn't that I don't want to pose. It's simply that I can't because my costumes haven't arrived yet. They're in Philadelphia."

"Oh, I see," the press agent said. "When do you suppose they'll be here?"

"Well," Miss Gray replied, "they ought to be here any minute."

"Oh, that's fine," was the enthusiastic response.

"And the photographs ought to be great," Miss Gray said brightly. "You see the costumes are coming by carrier pigeon."

"Cabaret" follows a talented dancer from poverty to the glitter ing turmoil of New York night life.

Beranger Makes Strides as Romantic Comedian

Can a comedian be romantic? Absolutely, says Andre Beranger, who is becoming noted for his romantic comedy roles.

Beranger plays such a role in "Altars of Desire," in which Mae Murray is starring with Conway Tearle at the Orpheum.

His is the part of an irresponsible, irrepressible Frenchman, who is out to marry money, and incidently a beautiful woman. He interpreted the role for its comedy possibilities, though still clinging to the thread of romance that it offered. Miss Murray and Maude George are the objects of his affection in "Altars of Desire," which was directed by Christy.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

COLONIAL—The Marx Brothers in "The Cocoanuts," a musical comedy. Music and lyrics by Irving Berlin; book by George S. Kaufman. In the supporting cast are David Breen, Margaret Dumont, Henry Whittemore, Janet Velie, Phyllis Cleveland, Jack Barker, Basil Ruysdael, the three Brox Sisters and the De Marcos. Also the usual chorus—energetic and fair. Musical numbers staged by Sammy Lee; book directed by Oscar Eagle; costumes by Charles Le Maire. Produced by Sam H. Harris.

* * *

ST. JAMES—(Stock) "Square Crooks," a melodramatic comedy by James P. Judge. A drama of the underworld in which it is discovered that some of the sinners have human qualities. Walter Gilbert and Florence Shirley take the leading roles, with more than ample support by Charles I. Schofield and Frank Charlton. Staged by Mr. Schofield.

* * *

WALDRON'S CASINO—(Burlesque) "Jiggs, Maggie and Dinty," a comedy of mirth and melody taken from George McManus' popular "Bringing Up Father" strooms in the Evening American. Adaptation by John H. Mulgrew; music by Seymour Furth. In the cast are Pete Curley as Jiggs, Beatrice Harlow as Maggie and Ray Mack as Dinty Moore. Other players are Walt Brown, Mae Janese and Helen De Land. A chorus of eighteen girls adds to the pace. Produced by Gus Hill.

* * *

REPERTORY—"The Monkey Talks," a play of circus folk adapted by Gladys Unger from a French drama by Rose Fauchois. First time in Boston. In the cast are Mark Schweid, Charles Francis, Louis Leon Hall, Ruth Taylor, Linda Ann Carlton and Agnes Elliot Scott.

Massey Will Produce His New Play At the Barn

The next and fifth production this season of The Boston Stage Society will be a two part play, written and directed by Edward Massey, called "Anna Maria." Opening night will be Monday, April 4, and thereafter it will appear every night at The Barn.

"In Buddha's Garden," the modern Japanese play by Yoshihei Yamaguchi, is scheduled to appear again later in the season for another week's run at The Barn. It is also contemplated taking the production to a larger theatre.

Stars Give Services to Aid Penfield Benefit

Many of the prominent theatrical people now appearing at the various Boston theatres have rallied to the aid of Nick Penfield, formerly of the advertising staff of the Hollis street and Selwyn theatres, recently stricken with illness and for whom a testimonial performance will be given tomorrow night at the New Park.

This performance is being conducted under the auspices of the Hillers and Bill Posters local union, and included in the long list of talented performers who have volunteered to appear are Tito Ricordo, operatic tenor;

COLD DECK TOP-KICK

EDMUND LOWE, as the shifty Sergeant Quirt in "What Price Glory" at the Majestic, shuffles the cards and deals himself a heart.

The Jiggs Girl

PEARL CHORUS helps out nicely with the melodious humor in "Jiggs, Maggie and Dinty" next week at Waldron's Casino.

THE JESTER'S JOB IS WOE

The court jester, genius of buffoonery, and often as not, tragic clown of fate as well as target of heartless jokes for fiendish, half mad masters, plays a conspicuous part in "The Night of Love," epic of Keith's feudal era, starting Monday at the Lowe's State.

The jester was a very important and necessary figure in medieval life. He was generally born to his role and fell heir to it by right of heritage, as well as preparing for it by long years of arduous training.

Usually deformed physically, he, nevertheless, had keen mental powers, notwithstanding the popular notion that a jester had negative thinking abilities—for to the jester passed all the strenuous work of keeping the king, or lord, continuously happy and in good spirits.

Such a job, needless to say, must have taken up all of a good jester's time and toil to the jester if he failed in his fun. His fund of jokes had to be inexhaustible, his humor never-changing, and he was forced to laugh and be gay, even though his own heart be breaking.

Clever New Child Player Discovered in Films

Billy Kent Schaeffer, the clever child player, featured prominently in "Hills of Kentucky," now at the Modern and Beacon, was born in Omaha, Nebraska, on September 26, 1920. He is just 41 inches tall and weighs 60 pounds. His very low-colored hair is bobbed and his gray tell-a-vent eyes have a disturbing wistfulness which marks him as one of those youngsters who find and keep a deep place in human hearts.

Billy's dad, like Jackie Coogan's was at one time a soft-shoe dancer in vaudeville. His mother was also a dancer. Billy likes to shake a leg himself, but stands well with the teacher in school. During his seven months in the movies he has appeared in "The Ice Flood," "Husbands Preferred," "Lost at Sea" and King Baggot's "The Homemaker," in which he created a sensation.

SAYS PLACE FOR BEAUTY IS STAGE

"Someone once asked me what happens to those who win beauty contests," said Rita Carita, a native Bostonian and winner of a bathing beauty contest at Weymouth, Mass., and who is now singing and dancing in "The Cocoanuts," coming to the Colonial Monday. "I answered, she continued, as the girls who inhabit upon building their hopes and resting upon their laurels, nothing in the way of a career. But to those who forget them as soon as they win fame and begin work or study, many things can happen. The most acceptable reward for winning a beauty contest is an engagement with a musical show or in the movies. I accepted both, showing that I am at least normal, and have the desire of every girl to appear at some time in the movies or upon the stage.

"The girl who in her younger days does not become stage-struck is in the minority. As the winner of the bathing beauty contest at Weymouth, Mass., on July 4, 1923, I had innumerable offers to go on the stage, also an offer from the movies. I accepted the latter and shortly after journeyed to Hollywood and appeared in minor roles in several feature films.

"Then I remembered my stage offers and declined first after all the stage held the greatest lure, and I returned to New York and accepted an engagement with Ed Wynn in 'The Perfect Fool.' During the run of the play I took dancing lessons and voice culture, and when the play went on tour remained behind to perfect myself in these two studies."

SYMPHONY IN BEETHOVEN PROGRAM

By MOSES SMITH

The regular Friday afternoon and Saturday evening Symphony concerts of this week were joined with the Beethoven Centenary Festival now nearing completion at Symphony Hall. For that reason two separate programs were arranged by Serge Koussevitzky, conductor. At yesterday's concert the fourth and fifth symphonies were played; tonight the conductors will render the sixth and seventh.

Koussevitzky

One rarely hears the fourth symphony nowadays, and it is a pity. Judging from the sound of it at yesterday's performance. The first movement has genuine inspiration, though it is not the Beethoven of the "Eroica." The second movement, given a superb rendition by Mr. Koussevitzky and the orchestra, did not seem to warrant the extravagant praise lavished upon it by Berlioz.

The scherzo, with its suggestions of "Egmont," and the finale, taken at a breathless clip by Mr. Koussevitzky, were charming. The performance of the whole work was as nearly perfect as we can imagine it. The conductor understood thoroughly what he wanted, and he wanted the right things! Moreover, his orchestra played with marvellous precision and ease. That was why the last movement, though played apparently faster than the indicated tempo, sounded so beautiful.

With the fifth symphony, Mr. Koussevitzky took his now familiar course. His is an "unorthodox" interpretation, off the beaten path of tradition.

STOLEN SWEETS BEST

THE GYPSY BURGLAR is Ronald Colman carrying off Vilma Banky in "A Night of Love" at Loew's State.

APPLE OF HIS EYE

THE HILL BILLY is Jason Robards spotting a "pippin" in Dorothy Dwan in "The Hills of Kentucky" at the Modern and Beacon.

Even Unto the Third Generation.

There are three generations of the Janneys in the theatre. Reynold Janney is company manager of "The Vagabond King," Russell Janney, his son, is producing "The Vagabond King," and William Janney, son of Russell, is appearing in "Jasmin."

STAGE AND SCREEN

Now, What D'ye Think of That?

Irving Aaronson, who comes to Loew's State next week with his Commanders, introduced the "Black Bottom" in England. In a letter received from London Irving is informed that the nimble Britishers have called the dance "Dark Foundation."

COUPLES AND CUT-UPS FURNISHING THE FUN IN THE NEW SHADOW ENTERTAINMENT

BIRDS OF A FEATHER are companionable, but the ill-assorted plumage of Gilda Gray and Chester Conklin contrasts with this strange friendliness. The answer is found in "Cabaret" today at the Metropolitan.

"FOR WIVES ONLY" is the title of this prettily prehensile posture (New Boston). Here you have Marie Prevost "collaring" Victor Varconi in this story of harried husbands very much on the A. W. O. Loose.

AND ON A NIGHT LIKE THIS! In "Altars of Desire" at the Orpheum, Conway Tearle orders Mae Murray to "never darken my door again"; so he keeps the lantern in his own hand. Having no home, Mae is probably figuring on the Friends of the Fallen, or something.

"SHOOT IF YOU MUST this old grey head," murmurs Kenneth Harlan, proudly drawing himself up to his full height, "but I will be avenged!" As his voice trails away into a sob, Billy Bevan "pinches" him in "Easy Pickings" (Olympia).

GOOD CHANCE TO DOUBLE IN BRASS

If Victor McLaglen and Eric Mc-Namara ever lose their jobs as actors, a fortune awaits them as motor amateur jugglers.

In "What Price Glory," the war comedy at the Majestic, the pair are called upon to juggle a minute motorcycle and sidecar between them. Victor McLaglen who plays Captain Flagg, has been practicing overtime at the Ice-Duc, and has learned to leave going on its own. But there is nothing for it but to climb aboard the machine and set it going. Victor McLaglen can get it up to 30 miles an hour, Flagg is still shaky from a night's celebration, and McNamara is nervous even the word "go."

Victor McLaglen

"Now," said Director Raoul Walsh in describing it, "you signal Victor to go, you signal Eric to get in the road, and you get in the cart, and finally you signal me." So the handicap of the sidecar and the skids into a ditch. If anyone gets it, of course we are all ruined, you know."

McLaglen and McNamara practiced at each other's homes for a fortnight. It seemed an impossibly difficult mechanical and juggling feat, but determination won out.

Finally came the finish, and though it was done in one take, as a matter of fact, and a real thrill for the actors, McNamara at the crucial moment lost control and went through the ropes, which was according to directions, but unknown to McNamara, Victor McLaglen had substituted one of the canvas ropes of action photographic joke aids in a film.

IS AN ACTOR IN SPITE OF HIMSELF

Johnny Hyman is primarily a writer of vaudeville acts. And up to a short time ago thought no more of thrusting himself on the shiny side of the footlights than any other solid citizen who bends upon a typewriter for his livelihood. But in concocting the material for his sketch, "Playing Pranks With Webster," Johnny managed to let himself in for a "career." Having evolved the idea of the act, he found no difficulty in "selling" it to the Keith-Albee circuit, but apparently, no actor could be found who would even try it out.

Johnny Hyman

"Playing Pranks With Webster" is one of the most interesting novelty acts in the varieties. It requires a complete change of routine each day. The headlines in the current day's news furnish the basis of the fun. From them, the actor gets all his lines and "business," thus the act is totally different from one day to the next.

Naturally, it was difficult to hand this scheme on to any other actor, so Johnny, to realize prosperity on the creation, had to take his show out himself.

VARIETY AND PICTURES

SCOLLAY—Ken Maynard in "The Unknown Cavalier," a Western story. Also vaudeville.

GAIETY—(Burlesque) "The Talk of the Town" revue with Charles Trimblin and Helen Harris.

HOWARD—(Burlesque) "Step Along" revue with Agnes Nichols and Harry Jackson. Also pictures and vaudeville.

UNCONSCIOUS PERSECUTION

By MINNIE MADDERN FISKE
Star of "Ghosts" at the Park

A few weeks ago in Philadelphia over 100 women pledged themselves never to purchase or wear any more furs. Women all over the United States are making the same pledge. We are becoming enlightened to what the wearing of furs really means. We are learning of the horror of trapping and its unspeakable cruelty. There was a time ages ago when our prehistoric brothers and sisters had the material for no way of protecting themselves from the cold except by tearing the skins from the bodies of animals to cover their own. That time has long passed and this relic of prehistoric life has been permitted to persist into modern times because the truth about trapping is unknown to the average human being.

Thousands of highly intelligent progressive women busy in high activities eager to be of service to their community and country are unconsciously maintaining, sustaining and unflaggingly supporting the most stupendous concern in organized cruelty on the face of the earth —trapping. It was Robert Ingersoll who said, "there can be no real civilization which does not take into account justice to dumb animals. And how, so far, has the human race met its duty toward the great creation of dumb creatures committed to its care? It has met it without intelligence, without justice, without mercy.

Distinguished Comedian in "The Vagabond King."

Will H. Philbrick, born and educated in Boston, returns to his native city at the Shubert as principal comedian of "The Vagabond King," the light opera based on Justin Huntly McCarthy's "If I Were King." Will Philbrick this friends call him "Babe") comes from an old theatrical family. Has visited Boston for the past thirty years in various productions, ranging from vaudeville to the Primrose and Dockstader Minstrels and the New York Winter Garden's "Passing Shows," in which latter musical extravaganzas he appeared for eight consecutive years. He also has been seen in Boston in Keith vaudeville, in the Frazee and Lederer and Henry W. Savage productions, and during one season was co-starred with Grace Cameron. He also appeared with Fritzi Scheff in "The Love Wager."

Will H. Philbrick

In "The Vagabond King" Philbrick is playing the role originally essayed by the late Rowland Buckstone in the E. H. Sothern production of "If I Were King."

Claims the Mash Note Will Seldom Hit the Mark

"When a handsome actor lives his private life for three hours every night before the footlights, the young girls in the orchestra or the gallery confound that actor with his part," says Joseph Wagstaff, now playing in "Queen High" at the Plymouth.

"If he plays a gay, lively youth, he remains in their memories a lively youth. If he's disappointed lover, they think of him ever after as a disappointed lover. If he be romantic on the stage, they think he must be romantic off the stage.

Joseph Wagstaff

"This is seldom true. What is far more likely is that the actor, to whom the impressionable maiden sends foolish notes and gifts, tosses them away if he is a bachelor, or, if married, carries them to a wife he adores. The wife may not in the least resemble the lovely leading woman to whom he makes love every night and with whom, when off the stage, he may have an endless quarrel."

Wonder What the Sultan Thinks.

With the faith that moves mountains, John McGrail, the Met's journalistic envoy, is convinced that Princess Kohanna, dancing in the stage show, "Egypt," is the daughter of Abdul Hamid, former Turkish Sultan. All we need is Abdul's confirmation.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Now, There's Something in This.

"Groucho" Marx, the heavily mustached brother of the other three in "The Cocoanuts," at the Colonial, makes up his own smart quips. Here's a new one: "Did you ever stop to think that clothes make the man and lack of them musical comedy?"

NILSSON IS FIRST "FREE LANCE"

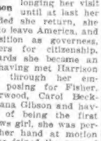
'Anna Q. Nilsson, star of "Easy Pickings" at the Washington Street Olympia, has been featured in more pictures than any other leading artist of the screen today. She was the first the first "free lance" in motion picture actress of importance.

Miss Nilsson was born in Yeted, Sweden. She came to America on a visit to friends when she was 12 years old. Prolonging her visit until at last her parents demanded she return, she finally refused to leave America, and securing a position as governess, took out papers for citizenship. Shortly afterwards she became an artist's model, having met Harrison Fisher socially through her employers. After posing for Fisher, Clarence Underwood, Carol Beckwith, Charles Dana Gibson and having the honor of being the first Penrhyn Stanlaws girl, she was persuaded to try her hand at motion pictures, and she joined the cast of a Kalem two-reeler.

'Anna Q. Nilsson

Marie "Figures" It All Out As Nice As You Please

Marie Prevost did a great deal of "figuring" before eventually reaching stardom in pictures. She received her start with Mack Sennett as one of his bathing beauties several years ago. After serving an apprenticeship with the famous comedy producer as an inducement for the fired business man to give some thought to the seaside, she graduated to comedy hits.



Her climb was steady from then on, her versatility attracting the attention of the larger producers. She signed a long term contract with Metropolitan Pictures Corp. Her new starring vehicle, "For Wives Only," was adapted from the Cosmopolitan series, "The Critical Year," and is the feature picture at the Keith-Albee Boston for the new week.

Cannon Member of "First One Hundred Thousand"

Norma Cannon, of the E. E. Clive Company at the Copley, was born at Oxford, England, and turned to the stage soon after his education was finished. He had no sooner risen to the position of leading man in a London production when war broke out.

Within a few days after the opening of hostilities he was at an English training camp for infantrymen. A month later he was at the front with the "first 100,000," the subject of that stirring book by Ian Hay.

When he returntd to England he joined another company playing London. There he stayed for some time until Mr. Clive offered him an attractive contract to appear with his company in Boston.

Broncho Busting Shown In New Ken Maynard Film

Just how an expert "wrangler" subdues an outlaw horse—i. e. one has never been ridden—is thrillingly shown by Ken Maynard in "The Unknown Cavalier," at the Scollay, in which this new riding sensation of the screen is starred. In the story the newcomer to the Western town wins the townsmen and the favor of the girls by riding a horse which none has been able to conquer. It's some bucking contest! A real "outlaw" horse was used for these scenes.

DENISHAWNS DANCE HERE

After a series of successful appearances on an eighteen months tour of the Orient, Ruth St. Denis, Ted Shawn and their Denishawn dancers return to Boston for three performances next Friday evening, Saturday matinee and evening, at the Boston Opera House. Ted Shawn

Rules for Movie Test

The Boston American will publish twenty-four scenes (one a day) from different motion pictures. The face or head of one of the players in the picture will be missing. Fill in the coupon under the picture with the name of the missing player and of the picture.

Awards will be made to the persons who send in complete sets of the twenty-four scenes, naming correctly or most nearly correctly the missing players and the plays.

A contestant must write a short letter, giving the name of his or her favorite moving picture and why. The [illegible] of this letter will be reckoned by the judges.

Employes of this and affiliated newspapers and persons affiliated with the moving picture business are barred from this competition.

The judges shall be named by the Managing Editor of this newspaper. Their decision shall be final.

Contestants may submit as many sets of answers as they wish.

Hold your pictures until the whole twenty-four have been printed. Then mail your answers and your letter to Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, P. O. Box 110, Boston, Mass. All sets must be in the office of the Contest Editor before midnight April 21. No sets will be returned.

CHEMISTS TO MEET AT NEW HAVEN ON MONDAY

New Haven, March 26.—The annual meeting of the American Institute of Chemists will be held at the Sterling Chemistry Laboratory, Yale University, on Monday. The afternoon meeting will open with a symposium on "Chemists' Contracts." Prominent chemists will discuss the general subject of contracts of chemists with employers. William H. Jardine, Secretary of Agriculture, will address the evening meeting at Woolsey Hall.

MOVIE CONTEST PICTURE 6 FROM FAMOUS BOOK

By THE TEST EDITOR.

When father was a boy the book upon which the motion picture play featured today is based was the talk of America.

Another thing which may be said of today's Problem Picture is that the gentleman whose face is visible was at one time one of the screen's most outstanding leading men. The other gentleman, whose face has been painted out, is a native of Mexico. Need one say more?

The Evening American's "Who's Who in the Movies" competition will on Monday enter its second week. The Test Editor again directs attention to the importance of writing your letter as soon as you can conveniently do so.

Please write upon one side of the paper only and stay within the 300-word limit. Your subject, remember, is to be "My Favorite Movie Motion Picture Play and Why It Is My Favorite."

You might begin with some such phrase as "The reason I like——— better than any other picture-play I have seen is———" and go on from there.

Take as much care as possible with your letter, but remember that the judges will not be looking for "fine writing." What they are apt to like the best will be originality. Write as you would talk.

First of all, of course, in order to win one of the very valuable awards, it will be necessary to give the titles of the 24 plays and the names of the 24 players whose pictures will be placed before you as Test Problems.

That should not be difficult. Each day's Correct Title can be found in the List of Titles which is printed daily, and the name of each of the players in the List of Players. If, in each list, there are a few titles or a few names over, this is merely to make the competition a competition, to put a little kick in it.

YEGGS GET $325 MISS $500

Safe robbers broke into the Sturtevant & Haley meat supply warehouse at No. 52 Somerville avenue, Somerville, today, and, smashing the combination off the office safe, took $325.

They missed between $500 and $600 which was locked in an inner strong box, which they were apparently unable to break open.

Each day we shall publish a complete hand presented by Mr. Whitehead, together with a chart upon which the bidding and play may be noted.

Tomorrow we shall publish Mr. Whitehead's explanation of today's hand.

Fill out your own chart and compare it tomorrow with Mr. Whitehead's method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i. e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Yesterday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

SALIENT POINTS OF BIDDING

The only salient point in the bidding of this hand was South's two assists for Clubs, under the justifiable assumption that if permitted to play the hand at four Clubs, the Declarer, if he could not fulfill his contract, could at least save game at small cost.

SALIENT POINTS OF THE PLAY

Trick 1. From the fact that North could not rebid, South figures that East's side strength is in Hearts, and consequently that three tricks at most, two Clubs and the Ace of Spades, can be made against East's Spade bid, should South open his partner's suit. As another trick is necessary to save game, South opens with his singleton Heart, to be in position to secure a ruff in this suit on a subsequent round of play. South's Ace of Spades guarantees him a sure trump re-entry, to enable him to lead a Club to his partner for the return of the Heart suit and the needed ruff.

Tricks 2 and 3. East took immediate occasion at this juncture to get rid of one of his losing Clubs.

Trick 7. Had East blindly led trumps at Trick 2, his adversaries would have made two more tricks, the Ace of Clubs and a second Heart ruff, thus defeating the contract two tricks.

SPEAKER BEGS DEMOCRATS' PARDON

For using the phrase "leader of the House" on the floor during a speech in which he urged members to support Governor Fuller's vetoes of special bills establishing branch offices of trust companies, Speaker John C. Hull today made a public apology to his Democratic colleagues.

"Thursday, in my remarks, which were hastily prepared, I referred to the Speaker as the leader of the House," the prepared statement read.

"What I had in mind and what I supposed until today that everybody understood was that the Speaker is the leader of the majority party of the House.

"I certainly had no intention to minimize in the least the efficient and able leadership of my good friend from my own county, Representative Edward J. Kelley of Worcester, Democratic leader.

"I apologize to him and to my Democratic colleagues and Monday, at the earliest opportunity, I shall take pleasure in offering an apology from the floor."

The action of the Speaker is expected to smooth out the disgruntled feelings of Democrats and rally to the support of the Governor many members of the minority party in the contest over a branch banking bill, scheduled for Monday.

LIGHT CUT IN CHARLESTOWN

A reduction in electric rates affecting all domestic consumers using more than 60 kilowatt hours per month, was filed today by the Charlestown Gas & Electric Company. The new rate becomes effective on April 1.

While on paper the reduction granted by the company appears to be considerable, yet as a matter of fact, no consumer whose bill amounts at present to less than $5.70 a month will be affected.

The new rates provide for a payment of 9½ cents per kilowatt hour for the first 60 hours; 6 cents per kilowatt hour for the next 100 hours and 4 cents per kilowatt hour for all current in excess of this amount.

The old rates were 9½ cents per kilowatt hour for the first 1,000 hours; 8.5 for the second thousand and 4.5 cents for all over this amount.

The new rate applies to all domestic current consumption and the company will continue its present policy of giving 1 cent kilowatt hour reduction for bills paid promptly.

uses the Russian stage for Bolshevik propaganda.

The plan is to wean peasants from their devotion to the Church by interesting them in theatres.

BUT MR. TOMSKY, head of the Russian Trade unions, warns government that performances 90 per cent. propaganda can't succeed or compete with churches.

EDITORS of labor newspapers have the same trouble. They are amazed to find that they cannot compete against ordinary newspapers. In their case also it is "too much propaganda."

MR. TEAGLE, president of New Jersey Standard Oil, warns oil men that they are cutting their own throats. This country is treating the nation's oil wealth as unintelligently as frontiersmen treated the herds of bisons. The bisons soon vanished.

OIL IS ACTUALLY being sold for less than it costs to produce; cheerful for buyers, but it will not last.

Millions are spent developing new wells to increase competition, while oil companies are carrying 530,000,000 barrels of oil stored above ground at an annual cost, loss and waste of $130,000,000.

THE COUNTRY'S natural oil wealth is not merely private wealth.

It is a great national asset, and a way should be found to give oil production some national control and stop waste.

YOU ARE told many things about prohibition, for and against. R. H. Davidson, writing from Coronado Beach, California, asks: "Do you chance to know that the sale of children's shoes has increased 400 per cent. per annum since prohibition came?"

EVERYBODY will agree that 400 per cent. more shoes for children combined with larger savings bank deposits, is a strong argument for prohibition, assuming those things to be results of prohibition.

Those that would modify the Volstead Act say the average man is earning about twice what he earned before the war, and increased earnings, not the absence of beer, explain greater savings and more children's shoes.

THE SAPIRO-FORD case plods its weary way through the Detroit courts, and no matter how it ends it will not mean much. Mr. Ford's paper accused Mr. Sapiro. Mr. Sapiro sues Mr. Ford for $1,000,000.

IF THE JURY decides that statements in the Ford newspaper were libelous and gives damages to Mr. Sapiro, that will not settle anything except one individual case.

If the jury decides that Mr. Sapiro is not entitled to damages, that will prove nothing. Ford is one individual Gentile. Millions of other Americans are not bound by his views and do not share them. Mr. Sapiro is another individual, and millions of Jews engaged in helping to build up this country will not be affected or bound by any decision regarding his case.

IT LOOKS more and more like "Coolidge and Smith" for 1928, assuming that President Coolidge decides to run a second time. Mr. Burleson, postmaster-general under Woodrow Wilson, calls Smith "democracy's best bet," says he will carry the Solid South. The interesting part of the prediction is that Mr. Burleson is as dry as the driest spot in the Sahara Desert.

AT LYONS in Georgia, men on trial for kidnaping and flogging the Rev. E. J. Jones, Jr., wore hoods. One had a pistol, another waved a sword. They told Mr. Jones they did not approve his moral conduct, drove him off in a car, held him down, beat him with a leather strap.

THE CLERGYMAN testified: "After I was set free I started off down the road singing 'How Beautiful Heaven Must Be.'" During the beating he had prayed aloud. Such fortitude is most unusual.

MUSSOLINI proposes to do away with stage immorality in the Mussolini way. A law against stage indecency has been prepared by Martire, a Catholic deputy, and has religious approval.

Those that break the law, Mussolini will put in jail. And all Italy well knows he "does not mean maybe."

TWO DAYS Bears were happy and said, "The Bulls are running." Now Bears are gloomy. So it goes.

United States Steel showed that it is producing ingots up to 100 per cent. of capacity and Steel stock went higher than ever before. Don't gamble; you will always lose at that. But whatever you do, don't sell this country "short."

2 WOMEN HURT IN CRASH

Two sisters, Ellen B. McMillan and Elizabeth M. McMillan of Central street, Abington, had a narrow escape from death today when their automobile was struck by an express train at the South Hanson railroad crossing.

They are at the Brockton Hospital recovering from contusions and abrasions and a shaking up. The automobile was operated by Miss Elizabeth McMillan.

SHOT DIVORCEE BECAUSE SHE "DOUBLE-CROSSED"

Lawrence, March 26 (A.P.).—Walter Himmer, 31, who shot and wounded Mrs. Annie Wright, 39, after shouting, "If I can't have you, no one else will," was held in $1,500 bonds for hearing on April 2, when he appeared in court today on charges of assault with intent to kill. Continuance was ordered.

Himmer charged that the pretty divorcee, who was shot in the left thigh, "double-crossed him."

NURSE HELD FOR THEFT OF $5,000 IN ANTIQUE

James H. Handrin, a male nurse, was held for the grand jury in Waltham District court today, on the charge of stealing $5,000 worth of antiques and curios from the home of Arthur H. Whitney, chairman of the Watertown board of selectmen, on the charge of stealing a valuable pin and two books from Whitney, Jr. He was sentenced to thirty days in the House of Correction.

HUB FISH RECEIPTS FOR WEEK REACH HIGH MARK

With a total of 5,564,300 pounds of ground fish, receipts at the Fish pier this week topped the corresponding week in 1926 by 832,300 pounds. Today, wholesalers quoted 6 to 7 cents pe rpound for large cod, market cod and haddock; pollock was quoted at 8 to 9 cents per poun dand halibut from 22 to 25 cents per pound.

MELLON, OFF TO EUROPE, SEES GOOD U. S. BUSINESS

New York, March 26 (A.P.).—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who sailed for Europe today on the steamship Olympic, expressed optimism on the business outlook. "I see nothing to indicate that business will not continue to be good throughout the country," he said.

Salem Woman Is 100

Salem, March 26 (A.P.).—Mrs. Susan Harrod Northend, widow of William D. Northend, will be 100 years old tomorrow.

THREE ROXBURY STORES BURN

Fire of unknown origin early today swept through three stores in a one-story brick block at Nos. 94 to 94B Quincy street, Roxbury, causing damage estimated at $5,000. Two alarms were sounded. The blaze is thought to have originated in the basement of the Simon Sisters' millinery shop at No. 94. Most of the fire damage was done to that establishment. The blaze mushroomed to the meat market of Cohen and Risenberg and the J. Pilvin radio store. The fire was discovered by Patrolman Warren of Station 9.

THUGS GET $1 A POUND WHEN THEY STEAL SAFE

Thieves were repaid at the rate of $1 a pound for lugging off a 500 pound safe from the office of the Fresh Pond Market in Huron avenue, Cambridge, today.

Entrance was forced through a rear door and the safe was wheeled to an alleyway and is believed to have been carried away on a truck. In addition to the $500 in cash which the safe contained, the strong box also held some checks, insurance policies and other papers of value. A cash register in the store was also forced open and $6 was taken.

Burns May Be Fatal

Eugene Gordon, 29, of Lynn, was probably fatally burned when a gasoline torch exploded while he was using it in a Broad street garage today. Fellow workers tried to put out the flames, which burned the clothes from his body.

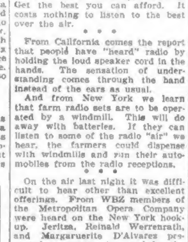
Midnight Ministry

To help meet the needs of people who are awake late in the night, the Massachusetts Federation of Churches announces a unique program every night from 12 until 1 o'clock from Radio Station WBSO, Wellesley Hills, Mass., on and after March 26, 1927.

The program is in charge of Dr. Henry Hallam Saunderson, editor of "The Wayside Pulpit" and author of "The Living Word: the Bible Abridged." He is secretary of the Committee of Evangelism of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches. Addresses, scripture readings, poetry and other literary selections are included in the plan of the programs.

RADIO DIALOG



Tonight two excellent programs of weight are to be heard from local stations. These are the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the New York Symphony Orchestra. Walter Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony, will conduct his ninth dramatic piano-recital with Beethoven music.

Our own peerless symphony will also offer Beethoven music: his sixth and seventh symphonies.

Why is it that some five-tube sets cost $30 and others cost $300? Why do people pay the highest price when they can get something at the lowest price? For the answer listen to tonight's WBZ and WEEI symphony orchestras. Then compare the music with a dance band.

Some people, the most civilized of all, so philosophers and pundits tell us, want to have the very best that life offers. They would rather listen to an exquisite symphony or grand opera than something less elevating.

Usually the more an article costs the better it is. Look up, not down. Get the best you can afford. It costs nothing to listen to the best over the air.

From California comes the report that people have "heard" radio by holding the loud speaker cord in the hands. The sensation of understanding comes through the hand instead of the ears as usual.

And from New York we learn that farm radio sets are to be operated by a windmill. This will do away with batteries. If they can listen to some of the radio "air" we hear, the farmers could dispense with windmills and run their automobiles from the radio receptions.

* * *

On the air last night it was difficult to hear other than excellent offerings. From WBZ members of the Metropolitan Opera Company were heard on the New York hookup. Jeritza, Reinald Werrenrath, and Margaruerite D'Alvarez presented a program too good for the type of transmission we have been hearing lately from WBZ.

"Twilight" impressed us as being one of the few outstanding solos of this year.

From WEEI Mr. Goldman led his able orchestra through the "Connecticut March" in a manner that would have made the composer thrill had he heard it. Edwin Franko Goldman has an orchestra which ranks with the best of serious musical groups. Just to listen to his rendition of "Minuet in F" by Rubenstein and his "Light Cavalry" overture made us glad we did not miss the concert.

More we can stand. We do not want less.

"'Do Professors Hebbert and Smith teach philosophy or science?' I queried.

"'Neither,' was the prompt reply of Mr. Wisdom who rested comfortably in a large chair. 'Those birds are in charge of the boxing team.'

"Guess this is dignifying boxing all right. Wonder what old John L. Sullivan would think of getting lessons in boxing from a real, honest to goodness professor?

John had a rather simple theory in regard to boxing. I once asked him to tell me how a young man could be developed to become a world's champion. He replied 'Teach him to hit the other fellow hard enough to knock him horizontal and keep him there.'

Taylor and Canzoneri at Title Weight

Chicago, March 26 (A.P.).—The world's bantamweight championship will go back to an active defender tonight when two judges and a referee decide between Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., and Tony Canzoneri of New York.

They will box at the Coliseum, ten rounds to a decision, at the bantamweight limit of 118 pounds, a poundage that Charley Phil Rosenberg failed to make twice at the cost of his title.

Taylor was awarded championship ... last Fall by the Illinois athletic commission when Rosenberg failed to post a weight forfeit, but it was not until New York also removed his crown and furnished an eastern contender that the throne was generally declared without an occupant.

The Terre Haute blonde has been knocking at the door for five years and his training workouts for tonight's battle have shown him at the peak of his form.

Canzoneri with but two years of ring experience and few matches against topnotchers, has a stocky build and fast footwork which have made him an even money favorite.

Both men were down to weight under light exercises yesterday, scaling a few ounces under 118. Taylor's customary ring tactics are to carry the fight along at a dizzy pace from start to finish, featuring a long left to the face.

Canzoneri's workouts have indicated he will start out with a strong body attack.

Promoter Jim Mullen has hung up a $2,500 diamond belt for the winner.

Several headliners are included in the supporting card. Johnny Vacca, who has two decisions over the fly weight champion Fidel La Barba will box eight rounds with Archie Bell of Brooklyn at 118 pounds.

Abe Attell Goldstein, former bantam champion, will meet Pete Sarmiento, the Filipino star for eight rounds.

Starting on next Tuesday, the former champion will reveal all his plans for the future in a series of three articles.

CAPTAIN SALVATION

By FREDERICK WILLIAM WALLACE
Author of "The Viking Blood," "Blue Water" and other virile sea yarns.

"Stop!"

Anson Campbell's herculean figure—naked to the waist—appeared like an apparition in the doorway. Swish! A swinging hand whiffed out the light. . . . The efforts of Lucille Damarest to escape vanished in thin air. Now more than ever she was a prisoner of the demon sea wolf.

How a ruthless rover of the sea found GOD and LOVE

Anson Campbell, young divinity student, flings aside everything connected with his old life—even the girl he loves—and ships before the mast. Utterly unafraid of God, man or devil, he lurches through life in a whirl of breathless adventure and throbbing passion, sweeping all before him.

Then the climax comes—shipwreck, disaster and in the end lasting redemption. Read how!

CHAPTER XXIX.

"Where do you want to go to eat?" Gus asked her, as she stood there with one foot on the step of the cream colored roadster.

Bobbie gave her head a little shake. "Oh, I don't know," she answered, trying to make her [illegible] "I want to take you tonight, Gus. Let's go [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

At [illegible] he started up [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] go on out into the kitchen and see what I can rustle up in the way of food."

They ate before the great window, and then Gus lit a cigaret and leaned back comfortably in his arm chair.

"All right, Bobolink, shoot! What was it you had in your mind?"

[illegible] said Bobbie and her voice was [illegible] "I wanted first of all to ask you about some gossip I [illegible] Is it true [illegible]"

[illegible]

"Yes," he said, so quietly that the little word made her [illegible]

She got up and came around [illegible] He put his hands on her shoulders, pressing them with his fingers.

She knew what he was going to [illegible]

[illegible] and how to say it.

"You're Married, Gus, and I'm Not," She Said

"You're married, Gus, and I'm not. And I haven't any business being here with you. It never was right for me to come, even before I knew that you were married."

He looked at her and then turned toward the window, his hands in his pants pockets.

"And anyway, I don't like the way you treat me," she went on [illegible]

"Yes, back home." He turned on her suddenly. "You can't forget that you're here in Hollywood where people are [illegible]"

[illegible]

"I care," she interrupted him [illegible] "I care too much for myself."

Her voice broke unexpectedly and she swallowed hard to keep back the warm tears that kept coming up into her throat.

"I care too much," she heard herself repeating foolishly for the third time. And then she was in MacCloud's arms, and he was lifting her up as if she had been a palm leaf fan.

He carried her across the wide room to the sofa and set her there in the corner of it. He put his hands on either side of her face, and as he kissed her she tasted the salt of her own tears on his mouth.

"Little [illegible] girl," he said huskily [illegible] "Worrying because I don't make love to her on the set, with a lot of [illegible]"

Bobbie opened her big eyes. "I can't expect you to [illegible]"

[illegible]

She pushed him away from her. Here she was doing the very thing she had made up her mind not to do—letting Gus make love to her and talk her out of [illegible]

"I'm going home," she said abruptly [illegible]

He walked out of the house, and through the open door she heard him get into his car and start the motor. [illegible] She knew he was waiting for her to come.

She ran upstairs to the guest room with its [illegible] and draperies [illegible] mirrors and [illegible] dressing table.

She wondered now if Gus's sister really had furnished the house for him or if his wife had done it. Perhaps she had lived here with him in Hollywood in this very house!

She ran out of it and got into the car. The drive home was over in a few minutes, for Gus drove like [illegible] He cut corners [illegible] and raced up [illegible] street as if Satan were behind him.

"Good Night," Bobbie Said to Him Breathlessly

"Good night," Bobbie said to him breathlessly as she got out. [illegible] gone [illegible]

"And gone for good, I suppose," she said to herself as she watched the car vanish around the corner. She didn't know whether she wanted to laugh or to cry. But she did both as she went up Mrs. Mangan's polished stairs and across the clean bare hall into her own room.

The next day she happened to bump into Lottie Schultz.

She was on her way to a jeweler's shop on the boulevard to sell one of Aunt Gertrude's old diamonds when she saw her walking along just ahead of her.

She was all in white, and everything about her was trim and perfect. Under her snow white felt helmet, her hair was dark and shining. Her wool cape was spotless and her white shoes were spotless too.

Bobbie liked the way she swung along, the neat way she set her feet down on the pavement, the way she looked eagerly from shop windows to people's faces. She looked so interested, so alive.

It was easy to see how she could hold Roy Schultz no matter how many blond [illegible] flappers might come his way in the studios.

She turned suddenly to drop some coins into a Santa Claus box on a corner, and it was then that she saw Bobbie.

"Oh, hello!" she said in her bright pleasant voice and caught her hands in her own white-gloved ones. "I'm out Christmas shopping. What are you doing?"

"I'm selling diamonds," Bobbie laughed back at her. She didn't feel particularly [illegible] Indeed she felt very unhappy [illegible] of Lottie Schultz's gayety and sweetness.

"Selling diamonds! What on earth do you mean?" Mrs. Schultz asked and as they walked along together Bobbie told how her money had gone dollar by dollar.

"Let's see the brooch," she said then and Bobbie handed it to her. She looked at it, turned it over and over in her gloved fingers.

"Look here," she said at last, glancing up at Bobbie, "you won't get much for this. It's worth it, but the stones have that old fashioned cutting. Why don't you let me lend you some money on it?"

But Bobbie shook her golden head. No, she wasn't going to let Roy Schultz's wife lend her money out of her charity. She was going to stand on her own feet. Her hat was still in the ring, and she could still go it alone.

"If only I could get some steady work," she said to herself when Lottie Schultz had left her at the door of the jewelry shop.

Just as she was turning to go in she stopped and swung around again to face the street. Gus MacCloud's cream colored roadster was streaking by with Gus in it hatless and [illegible] as usual. There was a girl beside him—and Bobbie caught just a flying glimpse of her face. A brown painted [illegible] face with blue eyes and a red red mouth that was wide and laughing. Monica's face!

Jeritza Tells Value of Daily Baths

By Maria Jeritza,
Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

DIANA OF POITIERS, famous beauty of 400 years ago, apologized for taking daily baths, explaining that she bathed in a tub of solid gold. Fortunately the prejudice against baths has disappeared. Those of us who value personal beauty take two baths daily if we can manage to do so, including one long cleansing bath in warm water and a quick tonic plunge in tepid water.

The logical time for the warm bath is at night, just before retiring. Then the pores are cleansed of the grime and dust and perspiration resulting from the day's activities and they remain clean during long night hours of sleep. A quick tepid bath, sponge or shower the following morning tones the system and firms skin tissue.

If you find two baths each day impracticable, you can combine the enjoyment and benefit of two baths by taking a warm, cleansing bath, then letting the warm water run out of the tub while clean, cooler water runs in to rinse your body. A tub bath should not [illegible] two hours after [illegible]

Before retiring [illegible] is theoretically the best time for a warm bath. But there are many women who find a warm bath so stimulating that they [illegible] afternoon before [illegible] is a wise time.

Very hot baths are weakening, very cold tub baths are too much of a shock for any but the sturdiest individuals. The average woman will probably find a tepid bath with the water at 98 degrees Fahrenheit, comfortable, cleansing and [illegible] Stay in the water [illegible] twenty minutes and during [illegible] remain active, scrubbing yourself, then tossing up rills of water with your hands and plunging about like a [illegible]

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

A NEW JERSEY man is suing his wife for divorce because she cries day and night. He's had three matrimonial adventures, but this is the only time he ever married a pretty face with running waters.

SHE can't control her tears. He looked up her genealogy and found out that her family tree was a weeping willow.

SHE'S sobbed on his shoulder so much that she's shrunk three of his overcoats.

THEY went to Niagara on their honeymoon and her eyes made the falls look like a leak.

THEY spent last Summer in the desert. She was working for the government as an oasis.

PEOPLE from miles around used to come over to fill their hot water bags.

SHE used to weep so much at night that her husband bought her a bawl gown. But it was a waste of money. She cried just as well in a kimona.

HE had her photograph taken the other day and when it was finished it looked like a picture of the Roosevelt Dam.

SHE used to make so many tears in dairies crying over their milk.

HER face was in tears so much of the time that the morgueres had to learn how to swim.

A HIKE ill on her knees the other day and developed pneumonia.

HER husband says it's too bad she hasn't got double chins so that she cold keep goldfish between them.

SHE used to cry over her soup so much that the city took it away from her and made her get a water spaniel.

SHE even had to sell her chickens and buy ducks.

SHE sobbed so hard one morning that Noah turned over in his grave.

IT got so that her husband had to put his galoshes on to kiss her good night.

EVERY woman cries a little, but you can't expect a man to give up a nice apartment and start house-keeping in an aquarium.

But his little foibles are his pride and his delight, which he treasureth as his "personal characteristics." And a red necktie, a whisk-broom mustache, an ancient after-dinner story, or a before-dinner nap may be more precious to him than all his possessions.

Consider his Complexes. For one man hath a complex for beautiful faces and another for graceful knees. One man thinketh himself a golf-wonder, and another fancieth himself an expert mechanic and rejoiceth to tinker around the house. One man hath a secret conviction that he can write poetry—and another loveth the sound of his own voice. One man would pose as the Grand Pooh-Bah of the household—and another liketh to think himself a "martyr."

Consider his Pocketbook. For every man hath a different way with his moneys. Lo, one man, delighteth to play Santa Claus and she that worsteth him for a good thing, forfeiteth his vanity. For he wanteth nothing that cometh cheap!

But another man despiseth the goddigger. And she that saith him, let us dine at some SIMPLE little place" and adjureth him not to waste his substance upon taxicabs, shall, peradventure, acquire him as a permanent meal-ticket. Yea, she shall be accounted "SO thoughtful!"

Thus, my Daughter, by quick thinking and cautious consideration, shall a wise damsel get them going—and keep them coming. But the foolish damsel is as a golfer that playeth with only one club and keepeth not her eye upon the ball.

Ford Sales Drop Badly; Detroit Waging Boycott

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

DETROIT, March 26. — No other city in the world can boast of two such industrial Goliaths as the General Motors Corporation and the Ford Motor Company. The first paid out more money in dividends last year than any other company ever paid in America's history. Ford used to rank first in the motor industry. He has lost that position — lost it badly.

Did you know that one unit of General Motors, alone, Chevrolet, is this year making more cars than Ford?

Today General Motors, you learn is employing over 150,000 people, which is said to be twice as many as the Ford Motor Company.

Ford is operating only three days a week and at little better than half-capacity during those three days, according to local information. General Motors publishes a complete record of its sales each month, but Ford doesn't.

DETROIT is up in arms against Ford. In fact, a boycott is being waged against him and his cars.

* * *

THE explanation given for the antagonism of his home-town folks is that he opened a grocery store and sold at prices far below those of retail merchants. When protest was raised another big store was opened and then a third.

* * *

Thousands upon thousands of customers—not Ford's workers—crowd to the Ford stores daily.

The merchants of Detroit decided that, since they were at the mercy of Ford's ruthless price-cutting, all they could do was to refuse to buy Ford's own products and to urge others to do the same.

* * *

SAYS ONE Detroit citizen: "Ford is making more enemies than cars. He has done his best—or his worst—to antagonize bankers all over the country. His fierce attacks on the Jews have naturally turned them into enemies. He is not nearly as popular now with labor as he used to be. And now he has brought on his head a boycott in his own city and has aroused the ill will of retail merchants throughout the country."

* * *

RUMOR FLIES thick and fast as to what Ford plans to do to try to stage a comeback. Only the other day came an official denial that any slashing of Ford cars is coming.

The common understanding is that he is getting ready to bring out an entirely new car, with regular gearshifts, and priced moderately.

But authentic information still is lacking.

DURANT'S announcement that he has arranged to re-enter the motor industry aggressively has aroused interest. But it hasn't excited any great alarm.

* * *

DETROIT feels that General Motors has developed such tremendous strength—physical strength, financial strength, brain strength—that it will successfully hold its own against any and all competitors. The General Motors new proving ground covering more than 1,200 acres near Detroit, is the latest marvel of motordom. Here every type of car, domestic and foreign, is put through every conceivable kind of test—X-rayed, so to speak.

* * *

FORD, Durant and General Motors should furnish the public with lively news during the next few months.

WHY THE OILS FAIL TO MOVE UPWARD

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor.

Why do the oil stocks fail to move upward as a group? Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, puts his finger on a sore spot in the situation when he says "there is still too much crude oil being currently produced and there is too much crude oil and finished gasoline lying held in storage." President Teagle denies any loss of faith in "the stability and ultimate prosperity of the industry." Meanwhile, for the present at least, gasoline users find comfort in the fact that prices for them are somewhat below what they were a year ago at this time, according to statistics.

Walter C. Teagle.

Proposed gasoline tax in New Jersey, on which agreement is said to have been reached, calls for a levy of only two cents a gallon. In breaking the deadlock that has long existed on this measure, Republicans have agreed to repeal the personal property levy on automobiles. This news is particularly timely in Massachusetts, with the gasoline tax proposal stirring State-wide discussion.

* * *

In the Popular Science Review for 1867 I find the following: "The mean expectations of life term in—

"London is 37 years, where there is one death annually in 41 persons.

"Liverpool is 26 years, where there is one death annually in 30 persons.

Surrey is 45 years, where there is one death annually in 52 persons."

* * *

According to these figures, especially those of Surrey, one does not find that life expectation has increased so remarkably as has been thought by some writers. In this column recently we printed figures obtained through Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, health commissioner of Boston, showing that male life expectation in Boston is now 50.56 years for males and 53.31 for women while in New York City the average for both sexes is 58.

* * *

During 1925 the 10,027 Massachusetts industrial establishments paid wages aggregating $714,155,593 and manufactured products with value of $3,426,617,326, according to census of manufacturers by State Department of Labor and Industries. Value of stocks and materials used was $1,794,643,651, and average number of wage earners 591,438.

Functions of Newspaper Are Three-Fold

The People of New England Want All the News and Want It CLEAN

A few days ago a group of prominent Boston people addressed a communication to the Boston Publishers' Association containing a plea for clean news. This subject, however, falls outside the province of the Boston Publishers' Associations, which is limited to questions of another character.

The management of the Boston Evening American, Boston Advertiser and the Sunday Advertiser, however, is glad of the opportunity to speak for itself on the subject.

The functions of a newspaper are three-fold—it should be informative, entertaining and instructive.

In discharging its function as a source of information, it should print the news—all the news. Suppression of the news is destructive and never constructive. In the handling of news the aim of the Boston Evening American and Boston Advertiser is to promote and foster clean living and straight thinking. Crime in the columns of the Boston Evening American will always be depicted as abhorrent, and a criminal as an enemy of society. This newspaper does not pander to a weak and mawkish sentimentality in dealing with the criminal element. Its columns will never inspire any youthful mind to an emulation of criminal acts.

In dealing with such cases as a recent one in New York, involving marital relations, the prurient details of which provoked overwhelming and universal disgust and loathing, the proper treatment by a newspaper was not that of suppression. With the filth eliminated a news report can be written on such cases which makes for good, and not evil.

Handled in this spirit, such cases as the Browning case can be used to portray the ignominious, disgusting position into which men and women who yield to licentious appetite can be led and earn for themselves naught but the scorn of all decent men and women. Fathers and mothers everywhere should know that there are beasts in human form abroad and thus be warned for the safety of their daughters.

A vastly useful lesson can be taught by such a case if properly handled.

We know the people of New England. We know they want the news—all the news—and want it clean. That is what we propose to give them.

African Ladies at Play

The Story of Polo

WOMEN OF FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA PLAYING WITH A GIGANTIC FOOTBALL.

This is a picture of energetic action. The African ladies are evidently interested in a game, new in their country, which consists in putting a huge push-ball through or over the goal. The game is played with desperate energy by these ladies with the closely cropped heads. Whether their heads are shaven that they may not seize each other's hair or for other good reasons is not known.

The object of the women is to keep the ball in the air, not to let it touch the ground, and that is interestingly emblematic of woman's task generally.

It is her business to keep the world GOING, keep it UP and prevent it from falling too low.

The costume of these ball-playing ladies leave something to be desired in the way of fullness. But it is not for our pink-stockinged, short-skirted, leg-showing generation to criticise our African sisters.

The men of this African tribe play with the big ball on horseback. And when they have done they allow their women to play on foot—very KIND of them.

It does the men and the women good, undoubtedly, because it exercises muscles not ordinarily used.

You know how polo is supposed to have begun. An Oriental Prince was ill, and a doctor told him his medicine must be taken through pores in the palm of his right hand. He put the medicine in the handle of a polo mallet, ordered the Prince to get on his horse and knock a ball around the field with that polo mallet, perspiring for at least an hour, and thus absorbing the medicine through the palm of his hand.

To make it more interesting, the doctor arranged a game that the Prince played solemnly, thinking he was only absorbing the medicine through the pores. As a matter of fact, he was EXERCISING, something he hadn't done before. He got well and decided he had a great doctor.

Exercise in moderation and you will be glad of it. Above all, EXERCISE YOUR LUNGS with deep breathing.

A few thousand extra gallons of fresh air going down to the bottom of the lungs and inflating the apices, or upper ends of the lungs, will do you more good than anything else.

PUZZLES ENJOYED ANCIENT DAYS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A BOOK containing 150 puzzles has come to my desk. Those who like puzzledom will be entertained and many who do not like puzzles will be started on their downward path.

Solving a puzzle introduces us to the mental process which discovers many useful things. The problems of this life are not solved like questions in arithmetic, but are usually solved by the process known as "fumbling and experiment."

To estimate the answers to a question by computing the average of probabilities is the way which is followed by those who find out recondite matters.

There are puzzles in the Bible. There is a tradition that Adam proposed curious riddles to his two sons, but it is not substantiated.

We know, however, that Samson besides being the strongest man was a good deal of a puzzler.

When the Queen of Sheba came to visit Solomon she "proved him with hard questions" and it is recorded that Solomon and Hiram, King of Tyre, had a contest in riddles.

The hieroglyphics of the ancient Phoenicians and Egyptians were a sort of rebus, in fact the alphabet started with rebus symbols.

Readers of history are all familiar with the puzzle of the sphinx which was: "What is that animal which in the morning goes forth on four feet, at noon on two and in the evening on three?"

The answer is: "Man."

Edgar A. Poe wrote a most charming and intriguing story called "The Gold Bug" which turned on the solution of a cryptogram and cryptograms are now the favorite amusement of puzzlers.

Some people despise the puzzler's art, but there is a National Puzzlers' League in the United States which directs attention to the educational benefit of it. It publishes a paper called The Enigma, which is a good test of one's general information and power of weighing probabilities.

After all, we know very little in this world exactly and most of our opinions are formed by the preponderance of probabilities.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

IF just a bit of weariness across my spirit creeps and if, sometimes, the high desire for but a moment sleeps, it is but as a passing cloud the sun will soon dispel, because I know that at a word the world will all be well! For just a word can fan again the feeble spark to flame, to scarlet tongues of leaping fire no doubts or fears can tame, and just a word can quicken hopes that faded for a time, a word can set the tale of life anew to joyous rhyme! Then all the world will be alight with sun and sweet with flowers, the birds will trill their happiness through flying, golden hours, and I shall gain full measure of the gladness which I seek when on the wind there comes a word. . . . a word that you can speak!

TRADES GET TOGETHER

Boston's financial, wool, paint, and leather districts are samples of how trades gather in one section. JOHN E. EDGERTON, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, who has been visiting in Boston, traces this far back. He says: "The Bible itself contains allusions to organizations of goldsmiths, apothecaries and spice merchants. From reference to 'Baker street' in Jeremiah and to 'cheesemakers' valley' in Josephus it appears to have been the tendency of certain trades to congregate in one locality.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE'S 21, blonde and in love with the Dearest Man on Earth. Spring's here—the apple trees are budding, the birds are nesting and a dream is throbbing in her heart. She would be nesting, too—

But she waits—

She can't decide.

"I'm afraid, Elsie," she cries.

"Maybe you'll say I'm a fool or a coward, but I can't help it. I'm afraid of the pain of motherhood. I adore kiddies and would love to have one or two of my own. But always that fear hangs over me. Tell me, Elsie, is it really so hard as some women say? Am I wrong to fear it so?"

"JANETTE."

No, you're not wrong to fear it, little sister. I suppose, in a way, all fear is wrong, and I hope that some day we'll push it out of our lives. But until that time comes we're bound to dread suffering. And motherhood does bring suffering.

It brings suffering not only of the body, but of the mind and soul. Each day of her child's life is a birthday to the mother who truly loves. Each day she goes through the old, old travail again. She must give life, not once, but over and over and over. And always the life she gives, the sympathy and understanding and help must come out of her own life.

BETTER, NOT WORSE.

"Oh, dear," I hear you wail, "it's worse even than I thought!"

No, dear. It is infinitely better than you thought. Motherhood is the most glorious fulfilment of life that ever can come to any human being. I do not mean that you will not shrink from the physical pain or not be pestered by the mental and moral responsibility. Of course, you will. But the instant when you hear your baby's first tiny wail will more than make up to you for the agony that has gone before. It will be as if the sun had risen in your own heart—as if all the birds in the world were singing in your throat. You'll be so glad for what you have given that from that day on giving will be an ecstasy.

That isn't a sentimental burst of words. It is a sacred literal truth. Ask any good mother and she will tell you that it is so.

"CHILDREN IS GOOD."

Listen, Janette. The other day I stood in one of our big clinics. I was watching the treatment of human illness that I might be able to do better writing for this column. They brought in an old, old mother for surgical treatment. She was very weak from long neglected faults in her poor, tired body. Birth had wrecked that body as fierce toil will wreck a fine machine. As I watched her lying there on the table, so patient, so weary, my very heart wept within me. I wondered if she was not bitter because of what she had suffered—if she did not envy other women their health and independence. I wondered if motherhood had made up to her for all her suffering.

I bent over her and asked her how many babies she had had. She looked up at me and something shone like a quick flame in her faded eyes.

"Ten children," she answered, in her broken English." I have had ten children. Seven boys. Three girls. Children is good."

Children is good!

After all her suffering she could still say that!

Children is good! Remember that, Janette — and go on proudly into your Big Adventure.

Rotating of the Sun

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Does the sun revolve on an imaginary axis like the earth, and what are the number of daily revolutions of the sun?
—L. B.

YES, the sun does "revolve"—rotate is the word astronomers use—on an imaginary axis, like the earth. But it doesn't make any "number of daily revolutions," for one turn of the sun on its axis takes many days.

You must remember that the sun is an exceedingly huge body compared with the earth. It would take more than a million and a quarter earths to make a globe as large as the sun.

The distance around the sun's equator is about 2,700,000 miles, which is more than eleven times as far as from the moon to the earth. You should not be surprised then, to learn that that immense body requires a month to make a single turn on its axis.

Yet for all that its rotary motion is not sluggish, for if you could get near it you would see the sun's equator spinning past you with a velocity of about 75 miles per minute!

A very wonderful fact about the sun is that it does not rotate at the same rate everywhere, but turns fastest at the equator and slowest as its poles are approached.

To illustrate what I mean, you know, I suppose, that every part of the earth turns about the axis at the same rate, so that whether you are on the equator, or in middle latitudes, or near one or other of the poles, it takes the same time—twenty four hours—for the earth's rotation to carry you once around. Of course, what we call the linear speed, that is, the distance that you are carried in a unit or time—say a minute, or an hour—is not everywhere the same, because the earth being a globe, the distance around it is greatest at the equator, diminishing to zero exactly at the poles.

But, all the same, it takes just as long for a point within a foot of the north or south poles to make one turn around the axis as it does for a point on the equator to make the same turn, although the distance in one case is not much over two yards while the other it is twenty-five thousand miles.

But on the sun things are different. The sun has not a solid surface like the earth, and is not solid within; but it is a globe of matter in the gaseous state—though very compressed—and as it rotates the equatorial parts of its surface have a greater linear speed than any other part, and the speed diminishes toward either pole.
